City Will Extend Street Bonds Falling Due 1926

Such Action Will Enable City to Pay Expenses Incurred This Year and Care For Additional Quota of State and County Taxes — Total Budget of $823,435.94 Exceeds Last Year's Budget by $52,000—Tax Rate to Be Higher.

Kingston's proposed tax budget for 1926 totals $823,435.94, or about $52,000 more than the budget of 1925. That fact was brought out at the public hearing on the budget held by Mayor Morris Block at the city hall Tuesday evening which was attended by Charles B. Everett, Attorney Frank C. Merritt, President Dempsey of the common council, and Aldermen Everett, Smith, Flannery, Radel and Beichert.

Under the provisions of the city charter the budget is prepared by the outgoing administration and adopted by the incoming administration. Unless there are some changes, which are not expected, the budget as prepared will be adopted by the incoming council early in January.

The total amount required for city purposes is $596,949.53 while the state and county charges total $226,486.41, which makes the total amount to be raised by taxation $823,435.94.

The Proposed Budget.

The main items in the proposed budget are as follows:

General expenses	$ 13,016.76
Election expenses	7,468.35

City's share of special improvement assessments	4,305.60
Total for city purposes	680,449.53
Anticipated revenues	83,500.00
Net amount for city purposes	596,949.53
State and county charges	226,486.41
Total amount to be raised by tax for all purposes	$823,435.94

Not Paying Street Bonds.

In reply to questions, Mayor Block explained that there was still outstanding about $300,000 in bonds to cover street improvements that had been made at least fifteen years ago. No provision had been made this year as in other years to retire any of these outstanding bonds, but on the other hand the board of public works in the past year has issued no bonds for street improvements.

$52,000 Budget Increase.

Charles B. Everett asked if the proposed budget for 1926 was not larger than that of 1925 and Mayor Block replied that in round numbers the budget for 1926 was about $52,000 more than that of 1925.

Mayor Explains Bigger Budget.

"The increase was all for the board of public works?" asked Mr. Everett.

"Not at all," replied Mayor Block. "A large portion of the increase is due to the board of supervisors, which will add at least a dollar to the city tax rate, and some by the board of public works."

"Have not the taxpayers any redress from the action of the board of supervisors?"

Mayor Block replied that the city was trying to obtain redress and that the common council at a recent meeting had directed the corporation counsel to take the matter up with the state tax commission who were expected to hold a hearing in the matter in this city in the near future.

Increased by Equalization.

"The city has added nearly four million dollars by the unequal assessment of the equalization committee of the board of supervisors. A number of years ago the city brought an action to review the work of the supervisors and lost its suit at an expenditure of nearly $40,000. Since that time a new law has been adopted by the state that makes the costs of such an action not to exceed $2,500, so that the city will not lose very much if the action is decided against it by the appellate court."

Tax Rate Higher.

Mayor Block said that the tax rate for 1926 will be slightly higher next year, but every dollar expended by the board of public works and every item of interest charges has been included in the budget. "There is a matter of about $200,000 of street improvement bonds dating back since 1911, which are unpaid. Some of these bonds were retired last year, but no provision is made in the budget to retire any of the bonds next year as it was thought best to include what had been actually expended the past year and not pay any of the outstanding street bonds for which this administration is in no way responsible."

Attorney Meandt said that the only solution of the problem in his opinion was to obtain equal representation on the board of supervisors. When the present city charter was adopted he had urged that a supervisor be elected from each election district which would have given the city twenty supervisors.

There being no further questions the mayor closed the hearing.

Skating Rink at Athletic Field

The board of public works has instructed Superintendent W. Scott Van Keuren to flood the Athletic Field for skating purposes if permission to do so is obtained from the Cornell estate, owners of the property. The Athletic Field was flooded last winter and afforded excellent skating for those who enjoy the sport.

License Plates Fall Behind

There were not as many applications for 1926 license plates for passenger cars up to noon today as there were on Tuesday at the Ulster county motor vehicle bureau, 237 Fair street, about 400 being issued this morning. Tuesday about 1,000 sets of passenger car plates were issued and the receipts were about $18,000 for the day. The total number of passenger car plates given out up to noon today were over 5,500 and Deputy County Clerk Finger estimated that at the close of business this afternoon 500 more would be applied for. This will leave about 12,000 plates for passenger cars yet to be issued for 1926, as 18,000 is the estimate of the State Automobile Bureau of the total number of that class of cars in Ulster county. Tomorrow is the last day for running cars with 1925 plates as the operation of motor vehicles without 1926 plates on and after January 1 is illegal and the state motor vehicle department has ordered the arrest of any operator running a car with the 1925 plates.

Bus Blown Off Ferry, Six Drown

Amsterdam, Holland, Dec. 30.—Six persons were drowned today when a violent wind swept a motorbus off a ferry boat.

A fierce gale was blowing throughout the kindom today. Almost all the rivers have overflowed.

Rhine Overflows.

Berlin, Dec. 30.—Extensive damage has been done by the flooding of the Rhine and all of its main tributaries.

BANDITS TAKE HIS CASH AND AUTOMOBILE

Hammonton, N. J., Dec. 30.—Anthony Macrie, 39, prominent hardware manufacturer of this city, was held up by four masked bandits early today, robbed of $7,500 in cash and his automobile.

The holdup occurred in a lonely spot on the White Horse Pike at Miltonville, a few miles below his home.

A posse of armed citizens and state police began a hunt for the bandits.

Train and Street Car Collide.

Homestead, Pa., Dec. 30.—Seven persons were painfully injured and twenty passengers narrowly escaped death today when a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie freight train crashed into a street car. The accident occurred in a dense fog.

Prohibition Is A Failure in Soviet Russia

First Big Effort to Dry Up Great Nation Ended When Moujik Moonshine Vodka is Restored—Lesson to World.

Moscow, Dec. 30.—Prohibition has failed in Russia.

Why?

Moonshining.

Concisely put, this sums up the past of the first and largest attempt in history to deprive a great nation of its drink. It was the first, because the Russion Empire went dry five years before federal prohibition was adopted in the United States. It was the greatest, because more than 180,000,000 people were affected, and the struggle was carried on for nearly eleven years.

But this succinct description needs much expansion and many qualifications before it can be applied to argument about prohibition in other countries. Both have been supplied to the International News Service by a group of Soviet leaders nearest to the problem.

Vodka Back of It.

The liquor question in Russia is the vodka question. Ninety-five per cent of the alcohol consumed in this country is drunk in the shape of that colorless, innocent-looking fluid which for centuries has been as typical of Russia and as little known elsewhere as the towers of the Kremlin. Curiously enough, it is no longer called vodka in Russia. Since the Soviets took up again its manufacture, they rechristened it "Russian bitters."

The failure of prohibition in Russia began when the simple Russian peasant, the celebrated stupid moujik, began to learn the technique of making vodka at home. That happened about three years ago.

But the official ceremonies which accompanied prohibition to its grave took place this autumn when the government reintroduced vodka containing 40 per cent alcohol. Sixty-five persons in Moscow celebrated the occasion by drinking themselves to death and the whole country went on a protracted spree. In the regions immediately around Moscow, 1,000,000 gallons were sold in the first week.

Wait Turn For It.

Today the survivors have settled down to a more moderate drinking program.

The original prohibition act in Russia was a measure of the Czar, who, with an imperial ukase, issued a few weeks after the declaration of war in 1914, outlawed his own liquor monopoly and at the same time cut from the budget 25 per cent of its revenue.

During the war, the Czar's police and the national feeling that prohibition would help win the war, kept the country dry. After the revolution, famine left no grain for moonshining during several years. On taking power, the Bolsheviks retained the prohibition act as one of the few measures they cared to inherit from the Czar's regime.

But the first good crops brought the first foretaste of samogan, and the first uneasiness in prohibition ranks. By two years ago the Soviets, despairing of the efficacy of absolute prohibition, attempted to substitute light wines and beer for the poisonous moonshine. The peasants paid no attention to the weaker beverages, and samogan continued to be made in increasing quantities.

Persisting in their effort to "taper off" the peasant from their addiction to strong liquor, the Soviets next, in 1923, allowed the manufacture and sale of 20 per cent vodka. This proved hardly more attractive to the topers of the countryside than beer, and in 1924 the government raised the legal percentage of alcohol in vodka to 30. But, as militia statistics show, no effect was perceptible on the production of samogan, and in October of this year the government went back to the pre-war normal of 40 per cent strong vodka.

Col. Coolidge Is Discouraged

Plymouth, Vt., Dec. 30.—Facing the prospect of never being able to walk again, Colonel John C. Coolidge, elderly father of the president, is in a discouraged mood today. He was looking forward however, to a visit tomorrow by his grandson, John Coolidge, John, who has been spending his Christmas holidays at the White House, is coming here before again taking up his studies at Amherst College.

Colonel Coolidge, whose legs are useless as the result of faulty circulation and rheumatism, is able to sit up in a wheel chair.

"There is no immediate danger," said Dr. Arthur N. Crane, the colonel's physician. "The colonel's heart action now is unusually good, better in fact, than it has been for some time. But in all probability the colonel has taken his last step. The rheumatic attack probably shortened his days."

Bandits Wound Proprietor.

New York, Dec. 30.—Three bandits, each toting two guns, shot and probably fatally wounded Manuel Fernandez, 50, owner of a boarding house for Spanish seamen early today. They escaped with $2,000. Thirty-five men in the dining room were held at bay.

Says Rail Merger Is Not Fair Deal

Counsel for Dissenting Stockholders of Hocking Valley Road Opposes Van Sweringen Billion Dollar Merger Plan.

Washington, Dec. 30.—The billion dollar railroad merger proposed by O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen of Cleveland was attacked again today before the interstate commerce commission. Appearing for a group of dissenting stockholders of the Hocking Valley, one of the roads involved in the merger, Edward C. Bailey of New York charged they were not getting a "fair deal" in the Van Sweringen transaction.

"It is clear that any plan of this character, the carrying into effect of which would work a substantial injustice to any considerable body of stockholders, could not be approved by the commission as being in the public interest," he declared.

"It would be a public calamity of the first magnitude because it would give the investing public just cause for believing that the policy of consolidation of the railroads is to be carried forward in that spirit of greed and oppression of the past, which almost destroyed the credit of the railroads and the faith of investors."

Despatches From Foreign Parts

Paris, Dec. 30.—"We want a Riffian peace not with Abd-el-Krim who is vanquished chief, but with the Riffian tribes," declared Premier Briand in the chamber of deputies today.

Berlin, Dec. 30.—The report that Russia was seeking to conclude a neutrality treaty with Germany similar to the Russo-Turkish treaty was dismissed as "unfounded" in responsible quarters today.

London, Dec. 30.—The "pierrot ruffle" has been brought into vogue by shingled hair. Fashionable women, instead of suffering chill breezes on their uncovered necks, are wearing huge, stiff, white ruffles above the collars of their wraps.

London, Dec. 30.—"Bridge eye" threatens to become epidemic in London, according to occulists. The new malady comes from too much playing of bridge and causes the sufferer to be unable to distinguish cards clearly.

Three Youths Out On $3,000 Bail

Edward "Chief" Smith, Bernard "Smelts" Alcon and William Schwalbach Arrested on Burglary Charge — Held Under Bail for Hearing Thursday.

Edward "Chief" Smith, Bernard "Smelts" Alcon, and William Schwalbach, the latter a married man, were arrested on Tuesday afternoon by Sergeant Simpson and Policeman Burger on a warrant sworn out by Morris Geary and John Jciojobis, charging all three youths with burglary in robbing the place at the corner of Chambers and Mill streets Christmas night and stealing $105.

Entry was obtained through a window in the toilet and the $100 was stolen from a drawer and the $5 from the cash register. The three burglars then went upstairs to the room of Geary, an aged man, covered him with revolvers as he lay in bed and told him to keep his mouth shut while they searched the building. Geary obeyed orders, but claims that he recognized in the three burglars the three youths now under arrest.

Alcon Walked Away.

While at the court house Tuesday evening awaiting the arrival of City Judge Thomas F. Coughlin to arraign Alcon, that youth walked away. A general police alarm was sent out and he was picked up on lower Hasbrouck avenue by a policeman and returned to the court house where his bail was fixed at $2,000 and furnished by his father, Julius Alcon. The other two, unable to furnish bail, spent the night in the county jail.

This morning before Judge Harry E. Schirick the hearing was adjourned to Thursday morning by consent of the district attorney's office and Judge Schirick fixed bail at $1,000 each.

Attorney Carle J. Flanagan appeared for all three youths and entered a plea of not guilty. The hearing was then fixed for Thursday morning.

Schwalbach, who is married, resides at 129 Greenkill avenue. "Chief" Smith lives on East Pierpont street, and Alcon on the Strand.

KEEP PAPERS SEPARATE FROM ASHES IS REQUEST.

Superintendent W. Scott Van Keuren of the board of public works, has asked The Freeman to request property owners to keep papers separate from ashes when placing barrels out to be collected by the city employes. Papers should be kept in separate containers when possible. He also calls attention to the fact that if one rule the papers so high in many cans that the papers are blown over the street.

Arbitration Main Obstacle To Coal Peace

Union Leaders Admit There Is Little Chance That Markle Peace Plan Would Be Accepted—Many Points Bear Out Operators' Contentions.

New York, Dec. 30.—A new peace plan, which would embrace the best points of the many proposals made to effect a settlement of the long drawn out anthracite coal strike, will have to emerge from the deliberations of the operators and miners if efforts to bring about permanent peace in the industry are to be successful.

This was the view expressed today by some of the conferees, notably the union leaders who frankly admitted there was little chance that the Markle peace plan, the latest submitted, would be accepted as it stands.

The joint conference was late in getting started today after debating the Markle plan, and other proposals, up to midnight. But the miners were up early and breakfasted in a body, at which time they again went over the Markle proposal in detail. They granted that this plan of Alvan Markle, big independent coal operator of Pennsylvania and impartial chairman of the joint conference, was of his own conception and that he was sincere in offering it.

"But" said one of the union leaders, "it is not acceptable to us—it is only another form of arbitration. And we are opposed to arbitration."

Arbitration Main Obstacle.

It was conceded by leaders of both sides that the question of arbitration is the main obstacle in the path of peace at present.

The operators regard the Markle plan with favor. Under the plan a fact finding committee would be appointed, a ten year contract would be made, revisable each year at the request of miners or operators, and the books of the operators would be open to the committee. The men would go back to work at once at the wages prevailing August 31. This would be their pay until the new contract would become effective, September 1, 1926.

Union leaders made it plain they preferred the Pinchot plan which calls for a five year agreement, a modified form of check off and a board of investigation to consider debatable questions.

100 Plans Offered.

The joint conference is proceeding with these two plans for most, and other proposals in the background. Nearly one hundred plans for settlement have been offered since the strike was started September 1.

Discussions so far have been carried on by the conferees in a courteous business like manner. There have been no heated verbal battles such as characterized the wage negotiations in Atlantic City last August. The miners and operators even dined together last night. This tolerant attitude is regarded as an omen for peace.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was expected to arrive in New York today to fulfill a speaking engagement here tonight. Union leaders would not say whether they would confer with Green, who predicted an early settlement of the coal strike.

Major W. W. Inglis, spokesman for the operators, says the operators are anxious to work through the New Year's holidays in the event that no agreement has been reached by tomorrow night.

Plan Discussed Informally.

Inglis said members of the operators' committee had discussed the Markle plan informally today before the joint meeting started, but had not reached a definite decision regarding it.

"There are many points in the Markle plan for which the operators have contended all along," he said. "We want to especially emphasize that it provides for automatic machinery to prevent lockouts or strikes and that the public representatives are given a vote after sixty days if the miners and operators are deadlocked. No other plans have provided this."

PUBLIC HEARING ON LOCAL LAW NO. 2.

Mayor Block held a public hearing on Local Law No. 2 at the close of the public hearing on the city budget at the city hall Tuesday evening, but no one appeared to present any objections to the proposed law which is designed to protect the city from damage suits arising out of injuries sustained by falls on icy sidewalks, etc.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Brazo, 528 Broadway, a daughter, at Kingston City Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Neuman, 70 Cedar street, a daughter, at Kingston City Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Long, 69 Third avenue, a son, Joseph, at Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sommer, Woodstock, a son, James C., at Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Toole, 294 West Chestnut street, a son, Robert Bergen, at Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mercurio, 138 Third avenue, a son, John, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Tipham, 75 North Front street, a daughter, Shirley Lucile.

Coolidge May Appoint Davis

John W. Davis is Being Considered For Appointment to U. S. Delegation to Arms Conference—Hughes or Root Will Head Delegation.

Washington, Dec. 30.—John W. Davis, defeated Democratic presidential nominee, is being considered by President Coolidge for appointment to the American delegation to the League of Nations arms conference, it was learned today.

It is the president's present plan to name Democrats on the delegation in order to give it a non-partisan flavor, and Davis has been proposed as a suitable choice. Davis is a former ambassador to Great Britain and is fully conversant with foreign affairs.

Other Democrats under consideration were said to include Colonel Edward M. House, Woodrow Wilson's personal advisor; and Senators Robinson, of Arkansas; Underwood, of Alabama; and Glass, of Virginia.

For head of the delegation, the White House is still inclined to ex-Secretary of State Hughes, or Elihu Root, also a former secretary of state.

Sir Broderick Is Bankrupt

Bootleggers Who Did Not Pay Their Bills and American Dry Fleet Prove Too Much for British Rum Runner.

London, Dec. 30.—Sir Broderick Hartwell, admittedly a heavy loser on rum running ventures to the United States, was today formally declared a bankrupt, after an inquiry by the bankruptcy court.

Sir Broderick's difficulties, it was stated, were due to the combined activities of the American anti-rum fleet and the failure of American bootleggers to pay their bills. Some of Sir Broderick's cargoes were confiscated by the American revenue officials and others were delivered to American purchasers who never paid for them.

The liabilities of Sir Broderick were stated to be about 250,000 pounds sterling, or more than a million dollars. His sole assets were very small.

Newburgh Adopts Its Tax Budget

Tax Rate, Without Including State and County Charges, Is $20.80 Per Thousand Valuation — $72,000 More Than 1925 Budget.

Newburgh's tax budget for 1926 calls for $784,944, or $72,000 more than the 1925 budget, but that amount does not include the state and county charges. The tax rate without adding the state and county charges in Newburgh for 1926 will be $20.80 per thousand valuation, which includes the school tax.

Kingston's budget for 1926 calls for the raising of $596,949.53 for general city purposes and with the county and state charges of $226,486.41 added makes the total budget amount to $823,435.94.

The Newburgh News in its story on the budget states that the city tax rate for 1926 will be $20.80 per $1,000 valuation, as against $23.20 in 1925 and $24.50 in 1924. As the Newburgh budget does not include the state and county charges it is impossible to give the actual amount of taxes that the taxpayers of that city has to pay. The Newburgh News says that Newburgh's assessed valuation in the city is $37,737,712.

May Lose Arm Hurt in Runaway

William Coffin, 32 years old, of Hunter, was brought to the Kingston City Hospital Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock with injuries sustained when the farm team he was driving ran away. Mr. Coffin's injuries are such that it was expected it would be necessary to amputate one arm at the hospital today. He was attended by Dr. George F. Chandler.

AIMED GUN AT BOY, HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

George Bleau of East Kingston was committed to await the action of the grand jury by Judge Webber at Flatbush on Tuesday on a charge of assault in the first degree and brought to jail by State Trooper Meizer. It is alleged Bleau on Monday aimed a gun at a boy and that he fired the gun but did not shoot the boy.

COURT MAKES RECORD WITH 243 DIVORCE CASES

New York, Dec. 30.—What was believed to be a record number of divorce cases were disposed of when Supreme Court Justice William F. Carswell cleaned up 243 cases of marital disputes, some of them dating back to 1914. One hundred eighty-three of the total number were dismissed.

Jones Wants State Capitol Changed For Flag Room

Plan of Using Mural Decorations Painted by Direction of Joseph J. McGrath of Phoenicia Dependent on Removal of Eastern Approach to Capitol.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 30.—What the state is going to do with the $42,000 worth of mural paintings, ordered more than five years ago for the ceiling of the proposed flag room in the state capitol, authorized by the legislature, but not financed, is one of the problems that will face the legislature this winter.

Indications are that a determined effort will be made to obtain money to build the flag room as a memorial to the state's sons who have given their lives in the service of their country, and also to carry out the related program for remodelling the east approach to the capitol and for providing an appropriate executive suite for the governor.

Artist Commissioned by McGrath.

More than half a decade ago, William de Leftwich Dodge was commissioned by J. J. McGrath, then superintendent of public buildings to paint the ceiling murals depicting the turning points in the state's military history and the deeds of some of the state's bravest sons. Since that time Mr. Dodge has been obliged to keep the paintings himself because the state has no place to store them. He has also paid the premiums on the bond and the insurance covering the work.

State Architect Sullivan W. Jones has prepared plans for the construction of the flag room, which is expected to become a focal point of national interest. Mr. Jones would make the flag room the main entrance to the capitol as it was originally intended to be.

The work, including flag room, removal of the steps and the new suite for the governor, would cost approximately $350,000. This money will not be sought from the $100,000,000 construction bond issue, it is understood, but as a direct appropriation by the legislature.

Want East Approach Removed.

The entire plan hinges on the removal of the front steps to the capitol, styled by State Architect Jones as a "granite cascade." The steps, Mr. Jones insists, are gradually cascading down the hill toward the Hudson river. Both he and Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene insist there is no way of repairing the huge pile of granite, which develops new cracks and slides a little further out of plumb each year. Authorities on architecture agree that from the standpoint of beauty there is no argument necessary concerning the proposal to scrap the east approach. Those who have climbed the steps without an east wind to aid them, or who have slipped down them when ice-coated, also agree.

What was originally intended for the capitol's main entrance is reached through a door under the east steps. The door opens into the large east lobby, now occupied by cannon and plaster statues of Hous. Christopher Columbus, Sir Francis Drake and Amerigo Vespucci, all of illstoric importance, but of doubtful artistic merit. The lobby now is dead space.

This space originally was the tower room, extending through two stories. In 1895, to provide more floor space, this tower room was divided into two stories by carrying the second story floor through it. The room now used as a flag room is the second floor lobby at the head of the east steps.

Experts say that if the new flag room is not two stories high, the $42,000 ceiling would appear out of proportion and distorted.

Finance Program Failed.

In 1920 the legislature authorized the construction of the flag room under chapter 668 of the laws of that year. No direct appropriation was made to finance the program, but the state treasurer was authorized to sell any securities in which the military records fund was invested and use the proceeds.

The superintendent of public buildings then asked the state architect to draw plans, and in September, 1924, the superintendent of public buildings and the trustees of public buildings approved the design. On October 1, 1920, Mr. Dodge was commissioned to paint the murals for $42,000, but when the first payment was due, the state comptroller refused to make it on the grounds that no funds were available. The $42,000 appropriation was made by the legislature in 1923.

WILL FIGHT INTRODUCTION OF ALLEGED CONFESSION

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 30.—The trial of Louis Labombarde, 20, charged with slaying one of the two aged tollkeepers at Hudson, entered the second day today with the defense prepared to wage a battle to prevent introduction of the alleged "woman hole confession" alleged to have been made by the youth.

The "confession" it is claimed, was made to Merlin Fitzpatrick, clerk of the Nashua district court, while he and Labombarde lay on the bank at Riverside Park.

HAS APARTMENTS TO SUIT MOODS

Kept in New York of Necessity, Man Finds One Home Bore.

New York.—There is at least one man in New York city to whom the saying "variety is the spice of life," is more than a mere phrase. Furthermore, he obtains all of his variety within the confines of the city. For present purposes it serves to dub him Mr. Trotter.

After a youth of roaming from one corner of the world to another, circumstances compelled Mr. Trotter to stay constantly in New York. Such a restriction on a born roamer naturally proved irksome. In his own words, Mr. Trotter was "about to bust" when an inspiration came to him that solved his problem.

Mr. Trotter, it should be explained at the outset, is of a whimsical inquiring nature and his wanderings were marked more by amused curiosity than high adventuring in the manner of soldiers of fortune. He sauntered rather than strode during his travels and in his quiet way managed to penetrate the local life wherever he went—ignoring and showing his disgust of the alien colonies of his countrymen.

With such a background of activity, he naturally began to chafe when he was confined to a single place—even when it is as big as New York. Life ordered itself into an inexorable routine and sameness; there was plenty to do but it was essentially alike no matter how much the scene might change from day to day.

Twitted by Friends.

"I was fast becoming a boor," explained Mr. Trotter the other day. "My friends twitted me about being a rolling stone who would eventually find settling down superior to wandering about. And they always wound up sooner or later with that bromide that, after all, variety is the spice of life. Right now I am glad they did because it finally led to my inspiration.

"I am not a man of great means but I am fixed so that I needn't worry. I had been living in a comfortable hotel, where there was nothing to be desired from the point of view of service or surroundings. But it took me just about a month to exhaust all of the observations that there were to be made about the place. I penetrated all of the surface life there and a great many of undercurrents, at least all that were interesting to me. It was like reading one book repeatedly and not a very exciting or deep book.

"One night a friend called on me to chide me for not going about more with the gang. Gadding, he called it. I told this friend in as kindly a manner as possible that the activities that were offered thus bored me. He finally said that I was incorrigible and then ended up with the same old bromide—well, after all, variety is the spice of life.

"After he had gone I got my hat and stick and went for a walk. Tramping the streets at night soon filled me with what the French call the homesickness for elsewhere. I felt a nostalgia for my hotel. I didn't want to go back to it that night but tried to persuade myself that I should reconcile myself to my fate. I wandered farther than I thought and suddenly found myself very tired. My hotel is in the Seventies and I was away below Fourteenth street. There was no taxi in sight or I would probably have gone home. Instead I espied a faint sign in the deserted street which said Hotel. I remembered that this particular house had been quite famous in its day before New York moved uptown. I knew also that it clung to its traditions and that it was perfectly clean. On the spur of the moment I went in, paid for my room and spent the night there.

Idea Is Born.

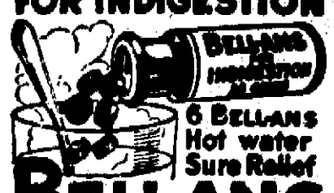

"The next morning when I woke up I was bewildered about my surroundings, but at the same time it spurred my old inclination for inquiry. I was curious about everything; the people in the lobby were different from my daily associates. I tried to figure them out. Thus the idea was born.

"Purposely prowling about for variety is not my way. It smacks too much of the tourist and superficial. My solution was simply this: I hunted up residences in various parts of the city in which I could gratify my moods and my curiosity about the lives and ways of places and people. The very rich have homes in town, on Long Island, in the Far West, in Palm Beach and elsewhere. Why not apply the same principle to New York city? I have, and I have found it one of the most interesting adventures of my long career. I needed my hotel address for business and social reasons. Accordingly I maintained my quarters there and kept most of my things there, but I now have four other places in different sections of New York to which I can go at any time that the mood strikes me.

"It gives me a whimsical amusement to start a day and never know in which one of my residences I will spend the night. And in each section I have a different circle of friends or acquaintances. Somehow none of them have ever crossed each other's paths, disproving that other saying 'the world is small after all,' while at the same time it proves that variety is the spice of life—if you live it."

Motors in the Desert

"Life is a pilgrimage and a weary journey," said the great Omar Khayyam, tentmaker, poet and astronomer, when he hoisted himself on his camel for the journey to the holy places of Islam. It is doubtful whether the great philosopher would have sent up this sad lament had he lived in the new East. For from Damascus and Beyruth comes word along with other less happy news that motor coaches of the latest American type are now leaving on schedule over the new roads of Palestine for Mecca and Medina, to carry the faithful to the Kaaba and the cave of the prophet. Omar often regretted that he could not enjoy both the company of Agape and still visit the hallowed shrines. Was it then in a trance of clairvoyance that he saw the pilgrims of later centuries journey in automobiles when he spoke to Nikki with the softest inflection this exquisite quatrain: "Seat thyself with me and a sack of ruby wine, draw the silken curtains, depart from all the world, flying through the empire of a sultan." And still if it were a taxi, where the meter clicks and ticks, even Omar might have preferred the camel.—Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Bullbats Eat Weevils

The bullbat, hitherto held in light esteem in Georgia, his habitat, is making friends among cotton planters because he feeds on the boll weevil.

The Adel (Ga.) correspondent of the Tipton (Ga.) Gazette reports this story:

"One of the members of the Farmers' union of Cook county, F. T. McDaniel, said there were a large number of bullbats flying over his cotton field every afternoon and he believed they were eating boll weevils. So he killed one of the bullbats to see.

"Cutting open the craw of the bullbat, Mr. McDaniel said he found 97 boll weevils, a fourth of which were still alive."

The Adel correspondent thereupon gives this advice: "Don't kill bullbats. Protect them. They are worth their weight in gold to the cotton farmer."

Wrecked "Apparition"

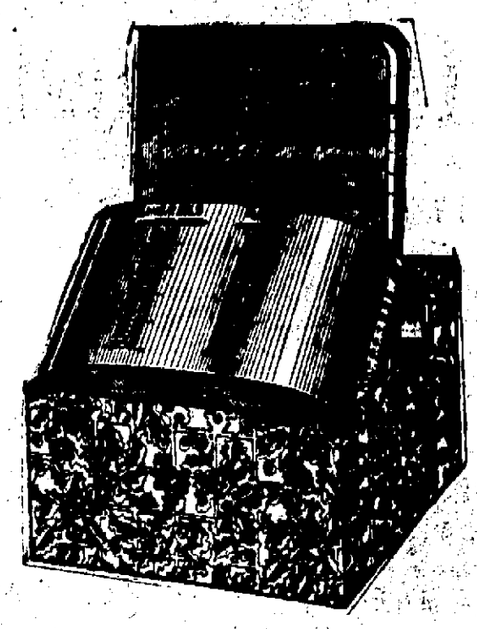

As a bull was passing down a street in Frederick, Md., with a herd of cattle, he loped up on the sidewalk and suddenly became aware of another bull gazing at him from a plate glass window in an automobile salesroom. He leaped at the apparition of himself while startled salesmen inside the building fled in haste. After thoroughly wrecking the glass and finding no bull the animal returned to his herd.

Sweden's Automobiles

The number of automobiles in Sweden, government statistics show, increased from 8,506, or one for each 707 inhabitants in 1919, to 62,830, or one for each 70 inhabitants at the end of 1924. The cars are mostly American made. The government's income from motor business last year included $1,622,314 taxes on automobiles; $774,013 on tires and $1,347,056 on gasoline.

Post in Far North

The world's most northerly post, also the most remote of any human habitation, is to be constructed next year for the Canadian police at the far end of Ellesmere Island. Building materials and two years' supplies have been carried within easy freighting distance of the point. Men will be detailed for patrol duty on the lonely shores of Kane straits.

What is your future worth?

WORTH is a matter of fitness, whether it is in work or in goods. The purpose a thing or act can fill, makes it valuable. Your worth is measured by what you can do.

What are you worth to-day? WHAT WILL YOU BE WORTH FIVE YEARS FROM NOW? Your regard for self-improvement, your attitude toward systematic study, your decision to sacrifice to-day, that you may enjoy to-morrow, will tell.

Take your future seriously. Plan ahead!!

INDIANS AND SHARPERS

There are rich Indians as well as poor, and it may be that the latter are really the more fortunate and happy. Through no effort of their own the Osages of Oklahoma have become the plutocrats of aboriginal America. Oil and gas within their lands have made them wealthy and inevitably the objects of plunder as well as envy by all sorts of sharpers. Last year the Interior Department handed no less than $13,000 to each Osage on the tribal roll of 2,229 persons. Since 1914 they have been paid more than $95,000,000. How much of it they are able to keep a tight grip on, or how wisely they employ it, is another question. Creeks, Choctaws Chickasaws and other Indians of Oklahoma have also profited by oil royalties and leases, but the reports indicate that in no case have the red men of means been able to protect themselves against quicker-witted white men.

In the case of the Osages the Government supervises leases and collects royalties, regularly putting into the hands of simple-minded Indians more money than they know what to do with. There the Government's duty ends, and the white neighbors of the wealthy Osages are said to "do the rest." In 1908 Congress withdrew from the Interior Department jurisdiction over Indian probate matters in Oklahoma, a change which is reported to have left the Indians "at the mercy of County judges, attorneys, guardians, bankers, merchants and politicians, to whom Indian estates were fair game." The "scandalous abuses" were at one time made the subject of Congressional investigation without definite results, and the poor rich Indians are still left to protect themselves as best they can.

TELEVISION.

Even the time when air flivvers will be within reach of the million, when the sky will be darkened with them as well as full of their roaring, when they may park in one's back yard and on one's roof, or drop on one's head, at any moment—even that time is hardly more full of terrors than the time when "television" is in full swing. For television is or will be, for the eye, what the radio already is for the ear—enabling us to see as well as hear what is going on both near us and far away. Those who now "listen in" and inform themselves about other people's business will actually "look in" and spy on their neighbors to an extent never dreamed of before. And when the world can "look in" at all they can hear now, what time will be left for ordinary amusements, to say nothing of duties?

It is announced from Paris that the competition among the radio experts of several countries, including the United States, for the achievement of television, has been won by the French inventor, Eduard Belin. His invention, though not perfect, gets results, it is said, that make ultimate success assured. According to report, further development is all that is necessary to cause the ethereal vibrations to bring to our eyes moving scenes of life as well as music and speeches from remote or near points. It may seem incredible, but little room is left for doubt as to any promised marvel in the presence of so many amazing inventions already in operation.

ANTI-CASUALTY CAMPAIGN.

When the women of the nation unite or city hand together for righting a wrong or for defense of a right, they usually succeed. Just now the women of the nation are banding together to fight the ever-increasing toll of death and injury from automobile accidents. This means that organized women have determined that careless drivers, or driving by drunken or irresponsible persons and careless walking must cease.

The first attack of this army of women who would defend their loved ones and themselves from death or maiming is on. The crusaders expect to bring home to every man and woman who drives a motor vehicle the seriousness of the matter.

The motorist hurrying to or home or to keep an engagement, fails to realize that he is his brother's keeper. This new movement, with its slogan "Safety or Sorrow," warns the motorist and impresses on him the heartache and economic loss that comes from the death of man, woman or child in auto crashes.

The man who walks often carelessly places himself in jeopardy by crossing streets at places where he should not and where the auto speed is higher. He steps from behind street cars directly into the path of a speeding motor. He permits his children to play in the streets. The women seek to save lives, and their campaign will be educational. They only ask that motorists and pedestrians alike would exercise care.

TEETH, FACE, AND HEALTH.

It doesn't seem very long ago since any youngster with "crooked" teeth was doomed to carry them, with their disfigurement to the face, all his life.

Of course children of wealthy parents had some corrective work done.

The process of correction requires skill, patience, and many months, even years of treatment.

Now this work of correcting teeth has developed into a specialty with the dental profession, and goes past the mere straightening of the teeth.

It is found that where teeth are crooked, where certain ones are crowding others from their rightful places, where other teeth are late in developing, that all these things not only alter the shape of the mouth and the expression on the child's face, but have an important bearing on the child's general health and physical development.

As you know each tooth has its own particular place in the jaw, and should meet its fellow opposite it in such a way that any particle of food getting between them should be cut like a knife, if in front of the mouth, or ground like the wheat in a flour mill if at the back of the mouth.

If teeth do not grow in straight, then this dental specialist has to try and pull the teeth in different directions by wires or other means, so that he can get the surfaces of the upper and lower teeth meeting or grinding one upon the other.

This is important because your cases of indigestion and poor nutrition can frequently be traced to this cause.

Further, the jaw itself must gradually enlarge both from side to side and front front to back. The upper arch as it widens or develops should sort of "flatten" down, thus giving more space for the nose cavities through which the air passes into the lungs.

Should the upper arch not develop or flatten down, then the youngster must get the air into the lungs in some way, and naturally breathes through the mouth.

This will often causes enlargement of the tonsils, even as enlargement of tonsils from other troubles causes mouth breathing.

Mouth breathing is often a forerunner of other nose, throat, and chest conditions.

Thus crooked teeth, can cause both intestinal and chest trouble, and therefore the entire system be endangered.

It is gratifying to know that the dental clinics in our cities now give treatment for crooked teeth thus helping the facial expression and the general health of the children.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

A NEW ADMIRAL ARRIVES.

One hundred and fifty years ago today a new personage arrived on the scene of the American Revolution. He was Admiral Shuldham of His Britannic Majesty's Navy, and he came to take the place of Admiral Graves as commander of all the king's sea forces in the waters of the rebellious colonies. This transfer of authority from one admiral to another gave Washington much concern at the time, but unnecessarily so, as it turned out. It marked no "turning point" in the war. Chiefly, as it now appears after a century and a half, it served to draw attention to the fact that there was such a thing as a British navy.

At the close of 1775 the old country and the American colonies had been in armed conflict for more than nine months. On land there had been an organized campaign against Canada, the siege of Boston, the battles of Lexington and Concord, Bunker Hill, and Great Bridge, and several minor engagements hardly big enough to be called battles. But on the water there had been no battles or campaigns, and in fact no activity on the British side except for a few attacks on coast towns, and with one exception there were raids for provisions. On the American side, however, there had been many captures of enemy supply ships by little armed cruisers and other craft sent out by Washington, by the united colonies or by individual colonies. The job for Admiral Graves during this time would have been to break up the raiding parties of the Yankee cruisers along the New England coast. But he, evidently, had conceived it to be his duty to keep his own ships snug and safe in Boston harbor where no "rebel" cruisers could get them.

Shuldham was sent over by the British Admiralty with orders to do somewhat better than Graves had done. Washington concluded readily enough that any change from Graves would be for the worse, from the patriots' point of view. So thinking, he pushed more vigorously than ever his policy of "speeding up the ships" to borrow a slogan of the World War. He knew what might be expected from a great maritime enemy even though it had not yet begun.

Thus it was that Shuldham's coming, though devoid of immediate results was one factor in hastening the assembling of the hundreds of craft which were manned by as many soldiers of freedom as fought in Washington's army, and which, whether as warships or privateers, took some 16,000 prisoners and captured ships worth nearly $25,000,000.

Nutty Natural History

THE MEXICAN FLIP.

The flip, or laughing jacksnipe, as it is sometimes called, is noted for the long distances it can cover without tiring. It will run for miles on its front legs, and then jumping to its hind legs go several miles more to rest its front legs before going back on them again. The quick flip to each position gives it its name. Although the Mexicans have not succeeded in taming the flips, they buy large quantities of them every fall, as pickled flip's feet are one of the chief ingredients of hot tamales.

A gaping pistachio nut forms the head of this queer creature, while split navy beans are attached for eyes and lima beans for ears. The body is a single peanut, and the legs and feet are toothpicks and split peanuts. Chewing gum or sealing wax can be used to stick the different parts together.

Cowan Prays For His Death

New York, Dec. 30.—Harry Cowan, the 55 year old slayer of Edith Burton, pretty young choir singer, in her studio apartment in Brooklyn, today prayed that he would join the girl in death.

"I love her—I love her," he sobbed in Long Island Hospital where he is believed to be dying. "Oh, God, take me to her."

Cowan's condition was too serious to permit questioning regarding the tragedy and the charge that Cowan, a former auditor, embezzled $11,000 from a New York hotel.

Beyong admitting he shot the girl and himself, the police have not been able to get any statement from Cowan.

The police made inquiries at Hotel Astor for "Senator A. B. Lewis" after a letter had been found among Cowan's possessions addressed to him. The letter was signed by Cowan and never mailed.

Senator Lewis had checked out of the Astor Monday night. He left, supposedly, for his home at Carson City, Nevada.

The letter written by Cowan told of intercepting letters between Lewis and Miss Burton and warned Lewis to cease courting the girl.

Mother's Prayer For Son Answered

News of Success of W. Frank Harling's Jazz Opera, "A Light From St. Agnes" Direct Answer to Her Prayer Says Mother.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 30.—Three o'clock on a wintry afternoon and a mother knelt in her modest Brookline home and offered up this prayer:

"Oh, God, be with Frank and let his opera be the success that he wants it to be."

At the same hour, half across the continent, in Chicago (2 p. m. there) W. Frank Earling watched the start of his jazz opera, "A Light from St. Agnes," saw that it was a mighty success.

Mrs. Joseph E. Harling, mother of the composer, told today of her prayer—told how a few hours later there came a telegram from Frank. "It was like a direct answer to my prayer," she said.

Unlike the proverbial mother-in-law, Mrs. Harling generously assigned all honor to her daughter-in-law, the former Lu Garda Mayer, concert soprano, now in Chicago sharing her husband's triumph. She said:

"I knew the whole opera almost by heart from hearing Frank and his wife Siwash we call her—going over and over the score here in this very house. Siwash has been my boy's inspiration from the first."

Papa Harling, sexton in a Brookline church, rose to remark: "Frank had it in him all the time."

Billy Harling, the composer's son, was a proud lad today. He exhibited a telegram from his father, telling of the success of "A Light from St. Agnes," mentioned that he had been given A in music at school and displayed a check for $1.20 for services as choirester at a Brookline church.

Harling, his folks revealed today, began the study of music here when he was a boy on thirty-five cents, set aside each week by his parents.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE CRYING DOLL

It came at last. Christmas morning And little Margaret was beside herself with joy.

In Her Stocking.

There were her different presents, a stocking filled so interestingly, and presents on the tree.

In her stocking there was a little bird cage with an imitation bird flying in the cage. Then there was a game, a little wee game, and some candy balls which were perfectly delicious, and one hundred new pennies done up so very nicely in a cunning little bag.

On the tree were all sorts of pretty things and lovely little toy gifts.

But her biggest and best and most beautiful present of all was a crying doll.

Oh, how Margaret had wanted a crying doll. She had wanted it more than anything else.

She didn't want a doll to say "Mama" and "Papa" but she wanted a really real baby doll.

She didn't believe anyone had ever been happier than she was when she took the baby doll out of the box and held it in her arms.

There it was with a big, round, chubby baby face which looked just like a baby's face, and it wore long clothes and a cap with streamers and it could cry when you held it in a certain position.

"Oh, you darling baby, how I love you," Margaret cried and everyone had to kiss the baby right away on her dear little round cheek to show her how welcome she was.

Then Margaret held her so that she cried. Quite a little while she held her so that she cried.

"There, there, little baby, don't cry. There, there. Muvver will look after you.

"There, there, my little darling, don't cry. Dry your pretty eyes and whisper to muvver all about it.

"Croon to muvver, my dear little baby."

Then Margaret held the baby doll up again and her crying stopped and a little handkerchief was brought out of her pocket and her mother dried her tears.

All day long the baby was with Margaret. Even at dinner she sat in the big chair—just a little way from Margaret's place—in which Margaret had sat for so many years.

In front of her place was a tiny baby's bottle with make-believe milk inside it. And now and again Margaret gave some to her baby.

All through the day, right up to night time, Margaret looked after her baby.

"You will always be well cared for by me my darling," Margaret said.

The baby seemed to understand that it was so.

"You always have a lovely home and you will be my darling, always. You precious dolly.

"How lovely to think you came right from Santa's workshop."

You could just tell by the way the doll looked that she was quite contented and that she knew that she would have a lovely home.

She had that look on her face that all happy babies have (even if they do cry, quite naturally at times) who know when they're in the very best and happiest of homes.

"How I Love You," Margaret Cried.

It was so nice, too, to have your tears dried and to be comforted when you cried. The baby thought it fine to be treated so patiently when she cried.

It was lovely to be soothed and loved.

But Margaret was happier than she had ever been.

To have a baby doll, her very own, straight from Santa, and to have her a baby that cried just as any baby did.

Not that she wanted her baby to cry much. She could say, after the one day, that she was a good baby and only cried a very little.

But one thing was lovely, when her baby cried, and that was she could pet her more than ever.

Oh, it was a beautiful present for Santa to have brought and only some one like Santa would have done such a lovely thing.

He Was One of Them

A little fellow arrived home from school while the family were at lunch. With a disgusted look on his face, he said:

"Mother, some of the boys in my class don't know how to spell 'mortgage'."

"Well, dear," replied his mother, "how do you spell it?"

"Me?" he asked. "Oh, I was one of those that didn't know."

HELPFUL HINTS

A tea wagon or wheeled tray is a wonderful step-saver for the housewife who has all of her own work to do. It may hold the dessert and on the lower shelf may be placed the dinner plates so that one trip will carry away the table dishes.

Add a little borax to the rinsing water for thin garments and fine handkerchiefs. It adds just enough stiffness to make them seem fresh and new when ironed.

Mix the chopped fruit with the sugar and butter when making a fruit or plum cake, then when baked it will not sink to the bottom.

A little lemon juice and grated rind added to apple pie, if the apple is not fresh and good flavored makes a tastier pie.

When using canned pumpkin for pies—and who wouldn't to save time, fuel and strength—open the can and put the pumpkin into a saucepan to stew down. This removes much of the moisture and gives it a color like the old-fashioned home stewed pumpkin.

When serving afternoon tea, stick a clove or two in the slices of lemon—some of them—as clove flavor is especially good in combination with lemon. A cube of preserved pineapple is another well liked tea adjunct.

Cubes of sugar rubbed over the fresh washed skin of an orange will absorb the oil and add flavor when used in tea.

When baking potatoes, parboil them a few minutes until well heated, then bake. They will bake more quickly and save the oven heat.

A glass of orange juice for the invalid is one of the best of drinks and a most agreeable tonic. It is good for the three months-old babe as well as the grandmother in the family. An orange at night is the best of bowel regulators.

In the home where tobacco smoking is common, place a dish of water in the room on leaving it for the night and the odors will be absorbed by morning.

Soak a new broom in salt water and wash it weekly in the laundry tubs of hot soapsuds. Then hang or rest on the handle to dry.

Country Talent Was a Surprise

Former City Man Writes in Appreciation of Ability Displayed at Entertainment Given by Mt. Tremper Schools.

Mt. Tremper, Dec. 28, 1925.
Editor The Freeman,
Dear Sir:

Upon rare occasions it is the good fortune of all of us to again live over in thought and memory the joys of our childhood days. This visionary return to youth usually expresses itself at the approach of a holiday and the more such a day is bound up with merriment and gaiety for little folks, the greater is the effect upon the emotions of the older minds.

On December 23 at the Christmas Festival and Entertainment given by the public school and Sunday school pupils of Mount Tremper, my thoughts at times carried me back to the days of kites, marbles, tops and a thousand other things useful to a boy in helping him to forget the tedium of arithmetic, history, geography and all those terrible other ics and ys small children must learn before they grow up to be men and women.

It was a truly remarkable performance that the children gave; they displayed all the skill and artistry that one might expect from the professional.

The singing, the reciting, the acting and the rendering of both solo pieces and accompaniments of the musicians were all so well done, that the simple grandeur of the whole entertainment thrilled me for a long time after Santa Claus had rewarded the happy performers for their good work by a most generous distribution of gifts.

These presents, both pleasing and very useful, were furnished by Mrs. Ariste E. DeSilva and the Sunday school. It was, indeed, a most fitting climax. The bright and expectant faces of the children, some anxiously watching Santa's every move and wondering what he was about to bring forth next from the big well filled bag at his side. Then, to witness this surrounded by decorations of flowers, greens, buntings and a colorful lighting effect is something that will be remembered for a long time by all who were present.

I have lived most of my life in the large cities and have attended exercises and entertainments given by the children in many schools—but, I must admit that I was frankly astonished by the talent displayed by these children in Mount Tremper.

A vast amount of patient teaching and rehearsing is necessary to produce such perfect results—and all those who guided the children during the long and tedious hours of preparation are worthy of all the approbation extended by all fortunate enough to be present at the entertainment.

One feature of the evening's pleasure was the singing of appropriate songs by H. Bailey, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Bailey These songs were rendered by Mr. Bailey in a very fine form, and though he was handicapped by a cold, every note and word rang out clear as a bell. He sang for the children, so he said; but the thundering applause extended indicated that while the children were good listeners, the older folks could not have missed any of Mr. Bailey's charming melodies.

Mrs. Ariste E. DeSilva is chiefly responsible for the great success of this Christmas entertainment. The following ladies and gentlemen assisted in many ways to make us all happy: Mrs. Carlton Hoyt, pianist; Mrs. G. Bryon, Mrs. Ada Mass, Mrs. F. Weber and Miss Mary O'Donnell. Ariste E. DeSilva, Richard Byron, Aden Chase, Ralph Chase and Chauncey Chase.

The Rev. B. Charles Ross very nicely conducted the program for the evening and many thanks are also due him for his interesting remarks while performing a very exacting and important duty

Very truly yours,
EDWIN F. LINDER.

PATROLMAN OVERCOME AFTER RESCUING TENANTS

Boston, Mass., Dec. 30.—Patrolman Walter Lindsay was overcome by smoke while he and Patrolman John J. Dunn were rescuing a score of tenants during a fire of mysterious origin this morning in the four story brick dwelling house, corner of Chambers and Auburn street, West End.

The fire was racing up the front stairways when discovered. Lindsay stood on Dunn's shoulders in order to gain entrance to the house through a window.

Dunn assisted an aged couple on the first floor and Lindsay ran through the upper floors arousing men, women and children. After he got every one out, he collapsed and was rescued by firemen.

BREAK GROUND FRIDAY FOR CENTERVILLE FIRE HOUSE.

The Centerville fire department has decided to break ground for a new fire house, if the weather permits, January 1, on a lot purchased on the Herrick estate, which is located on the east side of the Sangerties-Woodstock state road, opposite Felten's pavilion, Centerville. The plans are that two buildings are to be erected, one to be devoted to meeting rooms and kitchen, the other building to house the fire apparatus.

Teaching the Deaf

The first school for the deaf in the United States was a small school started in Hartford, Conn., in 1817. It was financed through the generosity of a few men, one of whom, Doctor Cogswell, had a deaf daughter. Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet, with the collaboration of the Frenchman, Clerc, inaugurated the system of teaching.

Lutherans Plan to Work for Negroes

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 30.—Home missionary work among the negroes will be begun next year by the Lutheran Synod and Ministerium of Georgia and adjacent states, if a recommendation is adopted which is presented by the Home Mission Committee of the Synod.

The matter of work among the negroes was brought to the attention of the committee by I. S. A. Bracey, of Prattsville, Ala., who wrote the committee asking what work was to be done in this field. The committee discussed the matter fully and adopted a resolution which said in substance: That the opportunity is open and there is a need and duty of ministering spiritually to the colored people in the territory of the synod, which includes Georgia, Florida and Alabama, and therefore the committee recommends that the matter be considered prayerfully and that the Executive Committee and the Mission Committee be instructed to take charge and act promptly.

Should the Georgia Ministerium act favorably on the proposal at its convention in Lakeland, Fla., next February, it will thus establish what would become the first home mission work among the southern negroes conducted by the United Lutheran Church in America. The Rev. Dr. C. F. W. Hoppe, of Savannah, chairman of the Home Mission Committee is also president of the Ministerium.

KERHONKSON

Kerhonkson, Dec. 30.—The exercises held in the K. of P. Hall on Tuesday evening by the school children were largely attended and were greatly enjoyed by the parents and friends. The little tots did their very best. The welcome recitation was spoken by Thelma E. Cross the three year old daughter of Mrs. C. H. Cross. Much credit is due the teachers, Miss Frances Mullar and Miss Ida Trout.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Humiston spent Christmas with friends at Cragsmoor.

Mrs. Russell Merrihew, of Fleischmanns was a guest of Mrs. Sylvanus Townsend last Wednesday.

Earl Gossoo is visiting friends in New York.

Several guests are being entertained at "Funcrest" during holiday week.

Andreas Cole and wife of Detroit, Mich., are spending a few days in town, guests of Mrs. Cole's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Cole.

On account of the water being let out of the Pine Hill Lake, in order to make repairs to the spill-way, H. W. Misner, the "ice man," will be oblized to harvest two or three crops of ice from his pond in order to fill his large ice house and the other ice houses in town. At present the ice on his pond is eight inches thick.

The water in several houses in town froze up last Saturday night which made work for several plumbers.

John Van Loan is drilling a well for Henry Judson on his property near Highmount.

Owing to the cold wave, workmen on the Hotel Wellington were obliged to stop work.

The chimney on the M. E. Church was blown down last Saturday, which necessitated holding services Sunday evening in the church hall.

Considerable wood has been hauled in town during the past month owing to the scarcity of coal.

REACHING THE LOWER WAVE-LENGTHS

Small Fixed Condenser in Series Does Trick.

Some receivers have a very limited wavelength range. It being impossible to reach wavelengths below 250 meters or above 500 meters. This is unfortunate, for there are now a number of fine stations using wavelengths below 250 meters, and some of the very best stations in the country use wavelengths over 500 meters. You will be glad to know that a very small change can be made to any receiver that will enable it to get down to 200 meters.

On the very simple crystal set no condenser is used in the aerial circuit. Generally you have a large coil with taps taken off with one end of the coil connected to the aerial and the other end to the ground wire. This coil has a natural wavelength to which it will respond more vigorously than it will to wavelengths either above or below this point. If you wish to receive all stations with equal efficiency, you insert a variable condenser in series between the aerial and inductance coil and you find that by varying the capacity of the condenser that you can tune in stations on different wavelengths and get good signals from all of them.

It is preferable to keep the inductance coil as large as possible or to have it wound so that it reaches the highest wavelengths you wish to receive with all the plates of the condenser meshed. To receive the very low wavelengths we must have some means of reducing the wavelength to which the present coil and condenser will tune, and this is done by means of a fixed condenser which is placed in series between the present condenser and the aerial.

The effect of placing the two condensers in series with each other is to reduce the capacity of both. If your set will not reach the lower wavelengths remove the aerial wire from the present fixed condenser and connect it to one side of a small fixed condenser of about .00025 and connect the other side of this condenser to the variable on the set. You will now find you can reach the lower wavelengths.

Harrison Hurt by Automobile After Corner Collision

R. Harrison Knocked Down and Pinioned Under Auto Which Bounded to Sidewalk After Colliding With Chester Osterhoudt's Car—Harrison in Hospital, Condition Serious.

William R. Harrison of No 87 ...rl street, president of the firm of R. Harrison & Company, wholesale grocers on Field Court, is in the Kingston City Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull and other injuries sustained Tuesday evening about 6:30 o'clock when he was struck by the automobile of James DeWitt of No. 9 O'Neil street, which after being in collision at the intersection of Main and Green streets with the automobile of Chester S Osterhoudt of No 14 Janet street, landed on the sidewalk where Mr. Harison was walking and pinioning him beneath the car

At the hospital this morning it was stated that an X-ray would be taken of Mr. Harrison's head to determine if the skull was fractured He was said to be resting fairly comfortable considering the seriousness of his injuries

When the two automobiles came together at the street intersection the crash was heard for some distance and a crowd was soon on the scene. DeWitt's car, an Oakland coach, was found standing on the sidewalk with Mr. Harrison underneath Mr. Harrison was removed from under the car and it was seen that he was seriously injured He was carried into the Bryant on Green street where first aid was rendered by Dr. C. L Gannon, and police headquarters were notified The city ambulance was rushed to the scene and removed Mr. Harrison to the hospital where he was attended by Dr George F. Chandler

Drivers Explain Accident

Motor Bureau Inspector Briggs who was on the scene right after the collision, took the statements of both drivers and furnished the police department with a copy and forwarded the original to the State Motor Vehicle Bureau in Albany

DeWitt's Statement.

James V. DeWitt, under whose Oakland car Mr. Harrison was found, made the following statement "I was travelling south on Green street and on nearing the intersection of Main and Green streets I blew my horn and all of a sudden I got hit and my car turned over two or three times and that is all I know."

Osterhoudt's Statement.

Chester S. Osterhoudt of No 14 Janet street who was driving a Studebaker Special Six sedan, made the following sattement. "I was coming west on Main street. I blew my horn before approaching the corner of Green street A motor vehicle was coming south on Green street at a rapid rate of speed and struck my car in the front end which turned her car completely around That is all I know about it I did not see strike the man

Neither Driver Injured.

One of the remarkable features of the collision was the fact that neither Osterhoudt nor DeWitt were injured in the crash and neither car was badly damaged.

On Way To Daughter's Home.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs Samuel Van Kleeck, daughter of Mr Harrison became the mother of a son born at the Kirchner Home on Maples street, and at the time Mr Harrison was injured he was on his way to his daughter's home to see if he could be of any assistance to his son-in-law.

Mr. Harrison has no idea of what happened, and when drawn from under the automobile all he could say was "What happened?" before he lapsed into unconsciousness

No Arrests Made.

The matter is being thoroughly investigated by Sergeant Briggs of the motor vehicle bureau on Fair street, who took the statements of the two drivers. Whether an arrest will be made and which driver was at fault is not known at this time

GOVERNOR SMITH, 52 YEARS OLD TODAY

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Governor Smith this morning found on his desk in the capitol a basket of fifty-two pink roses. It was a birthday remembrance from the members of the executive staff.

"One rose for each year," he said "It will cost something to do this if I stay around here much longer."

The governor finished his message to the Legislature last night and today will pass a quiet birthday reading proof. Tonight there will be family dinner at the executive mansion, featured by two huge birthday cakes prepared by the Japanese chefs

FAMOUS DETECTIVE CASES

Brutal Assault and Robbery of a Jewelry Salesman by a Lone Bandit on a Passenger Train

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman)

THERE were thirteen men in the smoker of a train on the Sioux City and Pacific railroad when it drew out of Omaha at six o'clock on Friday evening, November 4, 1892, and started on its Eastward run Among these thirteen, sitting about halfway down the aisle, enjoying a good cigar, was Mr. W G Pollock of New York, a traveling salesman for W. L Pollock & Co., of the same city, dealers in diamonds In the inside pocket of his vest he carried fifteen thousand dollars' worth of uncut diamonds, while a leather satchel on the seat beside him contained a quantity of valuable stones in settings.

On the front seat of the car, just behind the stove, sat a stolid looking young man, who would have passed for a farmer's lad He seemed scarcely over twenty, smooth shaven, and a stranger would have put him down as a rather stupid, inoffensive fellow Compared with Mr Pollock, he was slighter in build, although an inch or so taller. As he sat there staring at the stove, the passenger in the seat behind him, J. H Shaw, an Omaha well digger, a bluff, hearty man of social instincts, tried to draw him into conversation, but the young fellow only shook his head sulkily, and the well-digger relapsed into silence Presently, as the train was approaching California Junction, the young man on the front seat rose and started down the aisle Curiously enough, he now wore a full beard of black hair five or six inches long No one paid any attention to him until he stopped at Mr Pollock's seat, drew a revolver, and said loud enough for every one in the car to hear him:

"Give me them diamonds"

Then, without waiting for a reply, he shifted the revolver to his left hand, drew a slungshot from his coat pocket and struck Mr Pollock over the head such a heavy blow that the bag of the slungshot burst, and the shot itself fell to the floor Then he said again "Give me them diamonds"

Realizing that the situation was desperate, Mr Pollock took out his pocketbook and handed it to his assailant, saying. "I have only a hundred dollars, here it is"

Pushing back the pocketbook as if unworthy of his attention, the man coolly aimed his revolver at Mr Pollock's right shoulder and fired Then he aimed at the left shoulder and fired Both bullets hit, and were followed by two more, which went whizzing by the diamond merchant's head on either side, missing him perhaps by accident, but probably by design, as the men were not three feet apart.

By this the other people in the car had disappeared under the seats like rats into their holes To all intents and purposes Mr. Pollock was alone with his assailant The latter evidently knew where the diamonds were secreted for, ripping open his victim's vest, he drew out the leather wallet in which they were inclosed and stuffed it into his pocket Wounded though he was, Mr Pollock now grappled with the thief, who, using the butt of his revolver as a cudgel brought down fearful blows on Pollock's head The latter however, getting into the aisle fought the robber up and down the car, but a crushing blow at last laid him senseless on the floor

With perfect self-possession and without hurry the thief walked back down the aisle to Mr Pollock's seat and took one of the two leather bags lying there, by mistake choosing though, the one that did not contain the mounted diamonds. Then he went to the end of the car pulled the bell rope and as the train began to slacken its speed, jumped off the steps rolled down a bank fifteen feet high and disappeared.

Sharing, apparently, in the general consternation and terror inspired by the young fellow, the conductor, instead of bidding the train to pursue the thief, signaled the engineer to go ahead, and no effort was made for a capture until the train reached California Junction several miles farther on. Meanwhile the panic-stricken passengers recovered at their leisure, their composure and their seats Had but one of his fellow travelers gone to the assistance of Mr Pollock, the robber might easily have been overpowered As it was, he all but murdered his man, plundered him of his diamonds, and escaped without the slightest interference. When his pistol was picked up near the spot where he left the train, it was found that in the struggle the cylinder had caught, so that it would have been impossible to discharge the two chambers remaining loaded Thus eleven able-bodied men were held in a state of abject terror by one slender lad, who at the last was practically unarmed.

At California Junction the wounded diamond merchant was carried from the train, and that same night taken back to Omaha Mr. Pollock, being a member of the Jewelers' Protective union, a rich and powerful organization, established for the protection of jewelry salesmen against thieves, was entitled to its aid

When the detectives reached the scene of the robbery, the robber had vanished as completely as if he had been whisked off to another planet To be sure, farmers in the neighborhood brought rumors of the stealing of horses of a strange man sleeping in the woods and of a desperate looking character seen limping along the road but all this came to nothing, except to establish, what seemed probable, that the diamond thief had fled back to Omaha A patient and exhaustive search in Omaha resulted in nothing The man was gone and the diamonds were gone, that was all anybody knew

What made the case more difficult was the uncertainty as to the robber's personal appearance, for some of the passengers testified to one thing, and some to another The black beard was a cause of confusion, only one witness besides Mr Pollock remembered that the man wore such a beard Mr Pollock however, was positive as to this particular and it seemed as if he ought to know It was also impossible to decide from conflicting statements, whether the robber had a mustache or not and whether it was dark or light in color The fact is, the passengers had been so thoroughly frightened at the time of the assault that the credibility of their testimony was much to be questioned

Mr Pollock reported that for several weeks previous to the robbery he had suspected that he was being followed He also reported that on the day of the robbery he had been in the shop of the largest pawnbroker in Omaha and that while he was there two noted Western gamblers had entered the shop and been presented to him as possible customers He had made a trade of some diamonds with one of the men, and in the course of the negotiations had shown his entire stock While the trade was in progress a negro on the premises had noticed lounging about the front of the shop, a man in a slouch hat who suggested the robber From these circumstances it was decided that the robbery might be the work of an organized gang, who had been waiting their opportunity for many days and had selected one of their number to do the actual deed

All his life it had been Mr. Pinkerton's business to study criminals and understand their natures He knew that a crime like this one was much beyond the power of an ordinary criminal Let a robber be ever so greedy of gold, reckless of human life, and indifferent to consequences he would still think many times before declaring war to the death upon twelve men in a narrow car, on a swiftly moving train This was surely no novice in crime reasoned Mr. Pinkerton but a man whose record would already show deeds of the greatest daring; a brave fellow, though a bad one. And even among the well-known experienced criminals there must be very few who were capable of this deed

Mr Pinkerton, therefore, set himself to studying the bureau's records and rogues' gallery to first pick out these few. Page after page of photographs was turned over, drawer after drawer of records was searched through, and at last a dozen or more men were decided upon as sufficiently pre-eminent to merit consideration in connection with the present case.

Photographs of these dozen or so were speedily struck off, and submitted by the detectives to all the men who had been in the smoking car at the time of the robbery, to the conductor of the train and the trainmen to other passengers, to farmers and others who might have seen the robber while making his escape, and to various people in Omaha. The result was startling Conductor D M Ashmore, without hesitation, selected from the dozen or more portraits one as that of the robber. Mr Shaw, the Omaha well digger, who had sat just behind the robber selected the same photograph, and was positive it pictured the man he had tried to talk to Other passengers also picked out this photograph, as did various persons who had caught sight of the man as he escaped

The portrait thus chosen by common accord was that of Frank Bruce, one of the most desperate burglars of the younger generation in the country and it seemed only necessary now to find Bruce, to have the problem solved Many days were spent, and hundreds of dollars in searching for him Dozens of cities were visited, and every conceivable effort made to get on his track but it was not until his pursuers were almost weary of the chase that he was finally discovered living quietly in Chicago, on Cottage Grove avenue, near Thirty-sixth street, where he was operating with another high-class burglar, "Billy" Boyce

Requisition papers were at once procured from the governor of Iowa on the governor of Illinois, and men were sent to take Bruce into custody, when the "shadows" reported that he and Boyce had left for Milwaukee, where, of course, the requisition papers were valueless. Fortunately, that same night they attempted a burglary in Milwaukee, for which they were arrested and held for ninety days This gave the Chicago detectives abundant time to identify Bruce as the missing robber

Mr Pinkerton himself went at once to Milwaukee, saw Bruce in the jail, heard his story, verified its essential facts, and within two days, to his own complete disappointment, and in spite of himself, had proved a complete alibi for Bruce To satisfy himself in this connection, Mr. Pinkerton brought Conductor Ashmore and Mr. Shaw to Milwaukee, and pointed Bruce out to them; and after looking carefully at him, both men declared they had made a mistake in choosing his portrait, and that Bruce was not the robber.

With Bruce clear, the detectives were again without a suspect, and almost without a clue Just here, however, Mr Pinkerton recalled that on a trip to the West some three years previous, to investigate the case of a man arrested at Reno Nevada, on a charge of holding up a faro bank, and while stopping over in Salt Lake City, Utah, he had run across some sporting men in that city with whom he was well acquainted, and on his telling them where he was going and what his business was one of them whom Mr. Pinkerton had known for years, had said "Why the man at Reno is innocent The men who committed that robbery are in this city. One of them is a smooth faced boy, about twenty years of age, and the other is a heavy-set, dark complexioned fellow, with a dark mustache They are the intimate friends and companions of Jack Denton, the well-known gambler of Salt Lake and only a short time ago, at Salt Lake they entered a house one night, going in through a rear door and compelled two ladies, who were just returned from a ball, to give up a large amount of diamonds"

Though not interested in this particular robbery, Mr Pinkerton had mentally jotted down the intimacy of Jack Denton with this class of people and he recalled it now in connection with the fact that Jack Denton was one of the two gamblers to whom Pollock had exposed his diamonds at the pawnshop in Omaha He at once decided to secure definite information in regard to the boy who had been with Denton at Salt Lake three years earlier Proceeding immediately to Salt Lake City, and making cautious inquiries, he learned that the boy in question, since he first heard of him had been arrested and convicted of robbery at Ogden Utah, and sentenced to one year's term in the penitentiary An investigation at the penitentiary disclosed that the young man had given the name of James Burke, had served out his sentence under that name and had been released about one month previous to the Pollock robbery.

Denton, in the meantime, had left Salt Lake and gone to Omaha, there to make his home The boy Burke, argued the detective, had naturally followed his friend to that place. An accurate description of Burke was got from the records of the Utah penitentiary, and some idea of him and his friends was derived from the officials of the prison But where to find him in the whole great West was a question

Inquiries at Salt Lake developed the further fact that Burke had had one intimate friend there, a man named Marshall P Hooker Hooker had now however left Salt Lake and removed to Denver. For a man of his class, Hooker was unusually talkative, and was known by crooks throughout the country as "Windy" Hooker. Plans were made for keeping a watch on him and on Jack Denton, in the hope, by shadowing the movements of these two, of ultimately locating Burke.

Through the free talk of Hooker, reported back to the detective, it was soon learned that Burke was known by the alias of "Kid" McCoy, and that he had recently been operating on the Pacific coast in "holding up" faro banks, and had also been concerned in two large robberies, one at Lincoln, Nebraska, and the other at Sacramento, California. His whereabouts at that time, however, was unknown

Much time had now elapsed since the robbery and the sensation caused by it had died out Jack Denton and his friends seldom spoke of it, and Hooker never spoke of it unless the subject was introduced to him Both men were extremely shy of strangers and it was almost impossible for a detective to draw them out, as anybody who introduced the subject of the robbery was at once looked upon with suspicion For the purpose of creating further talk upon the subject, Mr. Pinkerton caused to be inserted in the Omaha papers an advertisement as follows

"Five hundred dollars will be paid for any information leading up to the identification of the party who robbed William G. Pollock on the Sioux City and Pacific train, November 4, 1892

"WILLIAM A. PINKERTON

"Paxton House, Omaha, Nebraska

This at once attracted the attention of the local newspaper men, and when Mr. Pinkerton arrived in Omaha he was interviewed by all the papers in the city in regard to the robbery. Thus interest in the robbery was at once renewed Denton and the other persons under suspicion commenced talking of the matter again none more freely than Hooker.

The latter was then in Denver. Mr Pinkerton instructed Mr. James McParland, Denver superintendent of the Pinkerton Agency, to send for him, and say to him that he had understood that he (Hooker) could throw some light on the robbery, and that a large sum of money would be paid him for the information he gave. Mr. Pinkerton explained to Mr McParland that Hooker would lie to him and endeavor to get the money by giving him false information, but to listen patiently to what he had to say and lead him on as far as possible without giving him any money This done Mr Pinkerton further predicted that Hooker would go back to his cronies and boast of the way he was fooling Pinkerton and how much money he expected to get; and that eventually, through his boasting he would prove the means of locating Burke, alias McCoy

And so, precisely it fell out Some of Hooker's companions were Pinkerton detectives, although Hooker did not know them as such and they in time reported back that Burke was really the Pollock robber, that after committing the robbery he had gone back to Omaha, and from there had gone to Denver. From Denver he went to Salt Lake, and visited a prisoner in the Salt Lake penitentiary with whom he was intimate, gave this prisoner some money and went from Salt Lake west to the Pacific coast

Mr Pinkerton next instructed that the record be examined for daring "hold ups" that might have occurred in the country lately traversed by Burke It was then found that a faro bank at Colorado City, a small place between Manitou Springs and Colorado Springs had been entered late at night by a masked robber, who compelled the dealer and other persons to hold up their hands took the money in the drawer, and escaped, that later on a similar robbery had been perpetrated at San Bernardino, California, that later still the poolrooms of James Malone, a noted gambler at Tacoma, Washington had been treated in the same manner; and, finally that a pane of glass in a jewelry store at Sacramento had been broken in and a tray of diamonds snatched from the window by a daring thief And all of these deeds Mr Pinkerton learned ultimately through Hooker's talk, had been done by Burke

The watch on Denton at Omaha developed little, if anything, except that a close companionship existed between him and the Omaha pawnbroker

During the summer of 1893 learning that an intimate friend of Burke's a burglar who had been in prison with him in the Utah penitentiary, was confined in jail at Georgetown, Texas, Mr Pinkerton decided to go and interview this man, and see if he could get any trace, through him, of the robber In the meantime he instructed the detectives at Omaha and Denver to keep a particularly close watch on Jack Denton and Hooker

On Mr Pinkerton's arrival at Austin, Texas, he found awaiting him dispatches from Superintendent McParland of the Denver agency, stating that through Hooker's talk they had learned that "Kid" McCoy, or Burke, had been arrested at Eagle, Colorado, with a kit of burglar tools in his possession, and was then in jail at Leadville, Colorado

Mr Pinkerton at once telegraphed to have Conductor Ashmore and Mr Shaw the well-digger go to Leadville and see if they could identify the prisoner. Word was also sent to New York for Mr Pollock to do the same He also instructed Superintendent McParland at Denver to send his assistant, J C Fraser, to watch the case so that if McCoy gave bail, or attempted to escape from the Leadville jail, they could be ready with a warrant for his arrest on account of the Pollock robbery

Having wired these instructions Mr Pinkerton proceeded on his journey to Georgetown, Texas, where he called on McCoy's former prison associate in the Utah penitentiary, but was unable to get him to tell anything about McCoy though he volunteered, if Mr Pinkerton would furnish him a bond and get him out of his Texas scrape, to go to Omaha and compel the "fence" who had received the diamonds to turn back the property. But the rule of the Jewelers' Protective union was to get the thief first and the property afterward, so no treaty was made with the Texas prisoner.

Mr Pinkerton now went to Kansas City, and found awaiting him there dispatches from Superintendent McParland of the Denver agency stating that Conductor Ashmore and Messrs Shaw and Pollock had positively identified the prisoner James Burke alias "Kid" McCoy, as the man who assaulted Mr Pollock and robbed him of his diamonds

Burke winced perceptibly when he saw Conductor Ashmore and Mr Shaw and went fairly wild when confronted by Mr Pollock Requisition papers were obtained from the governor of the state of Iowa on the governor of Colorado and the Colorado offense being a minor one, Burke was turned over to Assistant Superintendent Fraser and another detective to be taken to Logan, Harrison county, Iowa. Before leaving Leadville, Mr Fraser was confidentially warned by the sheriff of the county that he could not be too careful of his prisoner for that Burke, through a friend of the sheriff had made a proposition to the latter to pay him a thousand dollars if he would secretly furnish him with a revolver when he left the jail his design being with the revolver, to either [illegible] the two detectives [illegible] custody and make his escape from the train

On trial at Logan, Iowa the man was easily convicted and was sentenced to imprisonment for a term of seventeen years.

AGRIGRAPHS.

Agriculture is the venerable mother of all the arts.—Emerson.

Phosphated manure is much more valuable than untreated manure.

Six new dairy improvement associations in the fall of 1925 show the interest of New York state dairymen in "fewer and better cows."

Snow fences should have been up by the first of December, but any time before the first drifting snow is not too late to keep the banks out of the roads.

Plan to take an inventory this year. It gives the most returns for the time spent on it of any record the farmer can keep. The College at Ithaca will be glad to furnish a book for the statement.

In 1924 the three leading hay states, in the order named, were New York, Wisconsin and Iowa. New York produced a little more than seven million tons, and Wisconsin was a million and a quarter behind.

Uncle Ab says no one expects to get rich by farming, but a lot of good country folks have lived for the benefit of those around them instead of piling up an estate for their heirs to fight over.

FARM BUSINESS GETS THOROUGH DISCUSSION.

Everything about running the farm business, from getting credit to start with on through to organization for selling the ultimate products, is being covered by the farm management department of the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca at Farmers' Week, February 8-13.

Dr. G. F. Warren's talks on the general price level, the prices of farm products, public problems of agriculture, and the adjustment of agriculture to meet present and probable future prices are expected by the department to draw the largest crowds of any of the numbers. A new feature of this year's program is a question period for the use of the Farmers' Week visitors when they can discuss their individual problems with Dr. Warren.

"Obligations of dairy organizations to the dairy industry," will be handled by F. H. Sexauer, of the Dairymen's League, who also spoke at last year's Farmers' Week. E. H. Thomson, president of the federal land bank at Springfield, will tell about long-time mortgages and the methods of appraisal of farm lands by the federal land bank. Mr. Thomson will also conduct a question period on the federal land bank and the intermediate credit bank, giving farmers an idea of the facilities for credit placed at their service by the government.

How to take a farm inventory and what to do with it after it is taken, costs of producing and marketing different crops, the organization and management of cooperatives, the rearrangement of barns, and general efficiency in operations; how to use crop and market reports; and reliable information on taxes will all be discussed by men who have been studying these particular problems.

WHITE PINE TO RULE AT CORNELL EXHIBIT.

"White pine is king," declares the forestry department of the State College of Agriculture in its preparations for the nineteenth annual Farmers' Week. This event is being held February 8-13 at the State College at Ithaca.

"We intend," say members of the department, "to show the important part white pine plays in the forest resources of the state, and we will feature it in both talks and exhibits throughout the week. We will bring out every phase of its life history, its many uses, its astounding growth and the way to fight its enemies.

"Exhibits will show how to plant, grow, market and use white pine, and we believe that any white pine owner, whether he owns natural or planted stands, or if he only intends to grow some, will feel amply repaid for spending some time in Fernow Hall, the forestry building, during Farmers' Week."

Some of the subjects to be discussed by members of the staff during the week are what white pine has meant to New York state, the life story of white pine, bringing it up, hand-planted white pine, the wood of a thousand uses, the growth and management of white pine, and the measurement of the crop.

Dr. H. H. York, head of the blister eradication branch of the state conservation commission, will tell how to control the rust which is threatening large areas of white pine. He will bring with him from Albany a complete exhibit that shows the stages in the rust attack.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, Dec. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elmendorf of Shokan have left for Pittsfield, Mass., where they will spend the winter.

Franklin Barclay of Albany and Miss Minnie Moe of Kingston are spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. George Barclay.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Elmendorf and Mr. and Mrs. Burr K. Elmendorf and family of Shokan spent Christmas Day with Clarence Moe and daughter.

The school children are having one week's vacation.

Saugerties Plans An Elks' Club

At a meeting held on Monday evening in Mulford's grill at Saugerties, plans were started for a social club to which no one but Elks are to be entitled to admission. There are about eighty-five Elks in Saugerties and if the club proposed is a reality it will strengthen the efforts in that vicinity along the lines in which the B. P. O. E. are vitally interested and will also be a mutual benefit to all members.

After a lengthy discussion, preliminary plans were made. The meeting was adjourned until Thursday evening, January 21, 1926, when the matter will be up for further discussion.

MADISON HAS FIVE OF HIGH TEN HERDS.

Madison county challenges any county in the state for the number of herds in the high ten to date. For the month of October, Madison places five cows among the ten best in the state, according to dairy improvement association records. The first is owned by Brooks & McQuade, and averaged 48.8 pounds of butterfat.

George True, of Monroe county, stalwart supporter of the Genesee valley supremacy, is second with a 48.6 pound string. Another Madison county man here comes into the running with third place at 45.2 pounds. This herd is owned by H. H. Willcox.

L. D. Wales of Chenango county, is close at the heels of Willcox with a herd which averaged 45.1 pounds. He represents Chenango county in fourth place. Frank Scott strikes again for Madison by placing a 41.5 pound herd in fifth place, and to back him up, H. A. Bartlett, another Madison man, makes sixth place with a herd of 40.5 pound cows.

Paul Boynton of Essex county, represents the Adirondack district with a 40.3 pound herd, in seventh place.

Dan Decker comes in for eighth place with a bunch of Tioga county cows which tested 39.6 pounds. Here L. L. Lamb makes the final break for Madison county for placing ninth with a 39.3 pound string of cows. Ralph Butler of Cortland county, completes the list with a close tenth at 39.2 pounds.

ANNUAL BALL OF RESCUE HOOK AND LADDER

Arrangements are complete for the annual ball of the Rescue Hook and Ladder Company to be held at White Eagle Hall on Delaware avenue New Year's Eve.

The members of the company have been busy selling tickets and judging by the number sold a very large crowd is expected.

Firemen from Catskill, Saugerties, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and from the several companies in the city have promised to be present in uniform.

Dancing will start at eight o'clock and continue well into the New Year.

The Colonial Serenaders will furnish the music.

"How do I get to Coral Gables?" . . . Here's how:

The migration to Florida, and particularly to Coral Gables, is assuming extraordinary proportions. Transportation facilities are taxed to the utmost. Unless very carefully arranged, travel southward is apt to become uncomfortable and crowded.

In consequence, the Coral Gables Corporation has arranged a plan that will enable its guests to travel with the maximum of comfort and to see the best of Florida at close range.

Your local Coral Gables office will help you to secure reservations and tickets to Jacksonville. They will also give you another ticket that entitles you to a seat on one of the busses that will take you straight to Coral Gables from the Jacksonville railway station.

These busses are luxurious, speedy, and run at frequent intervals every day. Down the Dixie Highway they roll, and the glorious pageant of Florida unrolls itself before your eyes. You touch at historic old St. Augustine. You pass through miles of millionaires' estates around Palm Beach. You ride close to the tumbling sea, through picturesque forests and the new developments that are replacing them. And when at last you arrive at Coral Gables, you have a basis on which to judge it, and a keener appreciation of its extraordinary beauty and permanence.

This system avoids all congestion at the points where it now occurs and assures a safe and interesting journey. Whether or not you take advantage of the limitless opportunities that everywhere await you in Coral Gables, you will at least see the best that Florida has to offer. You will see almost two thousand beautiful homes in Coral Gables, many of which have doubled in value in a single year. You will see permanent and beautiful business buildings rising everywhere. You will hear stories of profits taken and fortunes made that sound incredible, but that are literally true.

And you will find somewhere in this miraculous city an opportunity to prosper and to live as you have never lived before—in life-giving golden sunshine, in the warm breezes of the South, and in a softly colored city, hung like a mirage of Old Spain under the great blue arch of a tropic sky.

Trips to Coral Gables

Personally conducted trips to Coral Gables are being scheduled daily by our local Coral Gables office. Let us arrange one for you. See for yourself this exquisite city of Spanish homes and brilliant tropical foliage. Enjoy the delightful kiss of the Caribbean trade-winds.

Come with us by Pullman to Jacksonville and then by motor-bus down the famous East Coast to Miami. You pay only the railroad fare—the bus trip is our treat. Three days in a Coral Gables hotel at a special low rate. Call, write or telephone our local office for full details.

Real Frigidity

Johnny was in the habit of swearing mildly when anything did not please him. One day the minister heard him and said:

"Johnny, don't you know you must not swear. It is naughty of you to do so. Why, every time I hear you swear a cold chill runs down my back."

"That's nothing," said Johnny. "If you'd been at my house the other day when my dad caught his toe in the clothes wringer, you'd have froze to death."

Asbestos Long Known

Asbestos, a native fossil stone which may be split into threads, is endued with the property of remaining unconsumed by fire. Cloth was made of it by the Egyptians, and written by the Romans at the time of the philosopher Pliny, 74 A. D. The spinning of asbestos was known in Venice in the Sixteenth century. Extensive deposits of asbestos are being worked in the eastern part of the province of Quebec.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Europe Hard Hit by Floods

Unconfirmed Report States That a Hundred Lost Lives in Rumania—Property Damage Will Mount Into Many Millions of Dollars.

Europe is suffering heavy damage and loss of life, due to swollen rivers caused by unseasonable thaws and heavy rains.

In Rumania there are reports of many lives lost. Thorenburg is reported to have been under water for several days, with the loss of a number of lives and great property damage. Other districts of Rumania and Hungary have suffered greatly.

Germany's rivers are rapidly rising and already Cologne has been partially flooded.

The Seine in France is badly swollen and floods are reported from many towns and villages.

Heavy gales are doing extensive damage in England and shipping is fleeing for port. One unconfirmed S O. S. is reported from the steamer Coronado and a Belgian steamer has been driven ashore at East Bourne.

Holland's lowlands are under water. High winds swept a motor-boat from a ferry and drowned six persons.

Throughout Belgium rivers and canals have swept over their banks. Houses and factories have been flooded and abandoned. Railway traffic is interrupted and shipping is menaced.

The total loss of life cannot be estimated. The reports of heaviest loss of life come from Rumania where it is reported without confirmation that hundreds of lives have been lost.

The damage will mount into many millions of dollars.

Santa at White Eagle Hall.

Santa Claus visited the White Eagle Hall on December 27 and all the children of the members of the Sacred Heart Society, which numbered over three hundred, gathered around the Christmas tree and received worthy gifts from Santa. A delightful program was rendered by the White Eagle Band under the direction of Mr. Grecco.

CERTIFICATES GO ASTRAY THROUGH CARELESSNESS

The Vital Statistics Law provides that each registrar shall "within ten days after receiving the certificate of any legitimate birth * * * furnish to the parents or guardian of the child a certificate of registration to be made out on a form which shall be furnished by the state commissioner of health."

State Health News, the official publication of the New York State Health Department, says.

The purpose of this provision was to furnish an additional check upon the registration of births. Parents now expect to receive this notice of registration of their child s birth and when it does not come they can request the physician, midwife, or other attendant to fulfill this vital duty to the child and the state by registering his birth.

It is, therefore, important that a physician or midwife shall fill out correctly item 9 of the birth certificate giving the father's place of residence, in order that he may receive notice of the birth registration. Failure on the part of the physician to enter the address correctly often leads to difficulties.

Typical of the complaints of local registrars is the following extract from a recent letter to the Division of Vital Statistics.

"Much trouble is being caused through physician giving wrong address on birth certificates, and several certificates of birth have been returned saying 'can't be found,' 'party unknown,' 'try so and so,' etc."

To paraphrase a well known saying, eternal vigilance is the basis of a system complete and correct birth registration. To keep the registration of births on the present high level, physicians should attempt to answer completely and correctly all items on the birth certificate, including No. 9.

STEAMER CORONADO IS CAUGHT IN A GALE

London, Dec. 30.—Distress signals were received today from the steamer Coronado caught in a violent gale off Landsend. The Coronado with 60 passengers and a crew of 102 was bound for Jamaica

Efforts to reach the Coronado have been in vain.

Owners of the vessel said this morning that they had last heard from the vessel on Tuesday afternoon.

Possibility that the distress call might have came from a United States shipping board vessel also named Coronado was suggested after owners of the Jamaica-bound vessel said no calls for help had come to them from their vessel.

U. S. Boat In New York.

THAT THE DAYS OF BEING FITTED ARE HERE AGAIN AND THAT HATS TOO ARE MADE TO MEASURE.

As everyone knows, gowns are more fitted than they have been, but to have this interesting and important fact really brought home one has only to try to get something ready to wear in Paris, always, by the way, a difficult procedure. For all their straight effect, the average dress conforms to the figure and is inclined to mold it rather closely about the hips. Sleeves, unless deliberately full, are also tightly fitted at the armhole, and these details, coupled with the fact that one still (see illustration) dresses head first, makes it rather difficult for an American to be fitted.

This is true also of hats, for the smartness of the modern hat depends almost entirely on how it fits the head, and so, while it is unusual for the American to figure on having her hat fitted, it is quite the order of things for the Frenchwomen.

The smartest frocks are those which call attention to the embroidery applique or decoration of one sort or another on the skirt. Molding the bodice to the figure seems to be regarded as enough, to but the skirts are usually entirely circular or lavishly trimmed at the front. This is true also of coats, which, when they are bordered, have the border almost to the hip, for which purpose beaver and nutria are much used and liked in combination with cloths of black, green or red—black, however, not being conspicuously present except when furred with either brown or gray. The hip-length fur band produces a most attractive silhouette, and is usually accompanied by a collar which is close fitting. Dresses, evening ones certainly, are inclined to heavy hems, georgettes and chiffons being bordered with velvet flowers or some sort of design usually in velvet.

Another Arrest In Leblanc Death

Leominster, Mass., Dec. 30.—Another arrest within forty-eight hours, which state and local police predict, will clear up the mystery surrounding the death of Miss Leblanc, 21 year old bride to be, was promised today.

Edward Rosseau, 21, on parole from Vermont prison to which he was sentenced for attacking a woman, is still held at Worcester county jail on a technical charge. He has been grilled time and again in connection with Miss Leblanc's strange death but protests his innocence.

Miss Leblanc's body, bearing no mark of violence except a scratch on the nose, was discovered in Leominster Lake ten days ago. An examination of the vital organs disclosed no sign of poison. There is the possibility, authorities said, that she died of fright.

Police today centered their attention on checking up the automobiles in this city in the hope of finding the car, which, they think, was used to transport the body to the lake.

Kingston Masons Elect Officers

Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., Holds 136th Annual Communication—New Officers Installed—Lodge Increases Masonic Building Fund by $1,600.

The 136th annual communication of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., was held Tuesday evening at which time officers for the year were elected and installed. The meeting was well attended and at the conclusion of the ceremonies refreshments were served.

Following the reading of the secretary's report and the presenting of the financial reports, Master Henry D. Darrow turned the meeting over to Right Worshipful John E. Kraft who presided at the election of officers and after the election acted as grand master during the installation of the elected and appointed officers, assisted by Worshipful Robert F. Avery who acted as grand marshal. The absence of Joseph Drake, who died during the past year, was very noticeable during the installation of officers, Mr. Drake having acted as grand marshal for some twenty years. The part of grand marshal was very ably and impressively taken in the past by Mr. Drake who with a commanding voice and manner acted as assistant to the grand master.

The following officers were elected and installed:

Worshipful master, Irving J. Rose; senior warden, Charles F. Lebert; junior warden, R. Frederick Chidsey; treasurer, Cornelius Hume; secretary, W. Frank Davis; trustee for three years, Thomas Snyder; senior deacon, George B. Styles, Jr.; junior deacon, George W. Gullick; senior master of ceremonies, Karl Schwarzwaelder; junior master of ceremonies, Leslie G. Lyons; chaplain, Edward N. Snow; organist W. Whiting Fredenburgh; marshal, Thomas Lebert; assistant marshal, Harry S. Watts; senior steward, Harry F. Pierce, junior steward, Henry Hirzel; historiographer, A. T. Clearwater; tiler, John Hein.

Relief Committee—Thomas H. Edmonston, Herbert E. Thomas, N. Guy Cochran, Kingston: Thomas Snyder, High Falls; Henry Hirzel, Rosendale; Eltinge Simpkins, Woodstock; Augustus Elmendorf, Hurley; S. B. Schwarzwaelder, Chichester; Jacob V. Merrihew, Olive Bridge; Fred S. Relyea, Rifton; John H. Saxe, West Hurley; Guido W. Bock, Cottekill.

Finance Committee—John C. Millham, Elva H. Bogart, Arthur A. Davis.

Conductors—Edward N. Scanbrough, Myron Styles, Clarence J. Babcock, Ernest LeFever, Reynolds B. Carr, Arthur C. Quimby, Amos J. McCreery.

Following the election of officers the retiring master, Henry D. Darrow, was presented with a past master's jewel by Past Master Rev. Frank B. Seeley on behalf of the members of Kingston Lodge, No. 10. Mr. Darrow was greatly overcome and responded briefly to the feeling remarks of Past Master Seeley.

The sum of $1,600 was transferred from the general fund to the credit of the Masonic Temple Fund.

At the conclusion of the meeting and during the serving of refreshments a social time was enjoyed.

Athletic Advantages

"I'm sure Bob's training is going to help a lot," said the prospective bride. "It has taught him to like a cold bath mornings." "Of what advantage is that?" inquired her chum. "W any one who likes things cold the morning won't mind getting up and looking after the fires."—Boston Transcript.

Will Dispute Debt Figures

Will Dispute American Estimate of Total French Debt—U. S. and Great Britain Estimates Not Equitable, Committee Finds.

Paris, Dec. 30.—The American estimate of the total French debt to the United States will be disputed by France when debt negotiations are resumed it was indicated by Adrien Dariac, chairman of the finance treaty financial clauses committee" of the Chamber of Deputies.

"It is certain," Deputy Dariac declared, "that the United States and England must consent to great reductions of our debt because they realized excessive benefits from our purchases from them during the war. Our committee report furnishes the French negotiators with decisions and arguments for reductions."

The committee, over which Dariac presides, in a meeting yesterday completed a study of the Anglo-French debts and the international accounting and adopted a report by Deputy Francois Pietris which concludes that the American and English estimates of the French debt are not equitable. The report further declares that under an equitable settlement, adjusting war losses against credits, that England and the United States would become debtors to France.

The report will be submitted to the chamber finance committee on Thursday.

Deputy Dariac in an interview with International News Service, stated that the result of the committee action would undoubtedly by that Senator Berenger, Ambassador designate to the United States would be instructed to dispute the American estimate of the total French debt.

"Our committee had adopted a report recommending that certain figures be accepted as the total of the French debts to America and England, said Deputy Dariac. These figures are not quite the same as the figures given by the United States and England.

"We have never considered the question of outright cancellation of the debts.

"The finance committee of the chamber will undoubtedly accept our report."

No Reduction Says Treasury.

Washington, Dec. 30.—The United States government will not consent to reduction of the principal of France's more than $4,000,000,000 war debt to this country, it was declared at the treasury today.

The only possible concession to France may be in a slash in interest charges, allowed some of the European nations, but even this concession would be slight as the American debt commission has studied thoroughly France's capacity to pay, and feels the French are able to meet the approximate terms granted to Great Britain.

GOOD WILL CLUB HAD CHRISTMAS TREE AND SUPPER

A very enjoyable evening was spent by the members and friends of the Good-Will Club on Monday evening, at Weber's Hall, the occasion being the celebration of Christmas by the club. A large Christmas tree was beautifully decorated and around the tree were presents for young and old. Santa Claus spent part of the evening at the club rooms and assisted in the distribution of the gifts. A real German supper consisting of sauerkraut and pork, with all the fixings, was served. Following a short business session the Christmas exercises consisting of recitations, songs and musical selections were rendered which was greatly enjoyed, especially the singing of the old Christmas carols. There was a large attendance, about one hundred twenty-five being present At a late hour the members and friends departed very much pleased with the enjoyable evening they had spent and loud in their praises to the willing hands who had made the arrangements so complete for this Christmas celebration.

Missionary

DHARMAPALA HEURRITAINA

Dharmapala Avagariki Heurarritaina, seventy-five-year-old missionary from Ceylon, India, has just sailed for England to establish a mission for members of his race. Later he will establish one in America.

HAS LITTLE HOPE FOR MILLENNIUM

"Our Bernard Shaws and Welless and Bertrand Russells promise that, if we put the government in their hands, they'll give us the millennium, but human nature is egotistic, and the millennium will never be ours."

The speaker was Dr. L. Brown Sinkler, the New York psychologist. He continued:

"Egotism—that's our great fault. What's a dude? A chap who dresses better than we do. What's a sloven? A chap who dresses worse.

"A spendthrift? One who spends more than we. A miser? One who saves more.

"What's a snob? A snob is a man whose social position is better than our own And what's a climber? A climber is one whose social position is worse than our own.

"And a genius is a man who thinks as we do, while a bonehead is a man who doesn't think as we do, and so forth and so on to infinity."

The Changes

"Ah, how times change!" musingly began Professor Pate. "No longer—"

"That's a fact!" impolitely interrupted J. Fuller Gloom, the human snapping turtle. "In the good old days we paid 10 cents or a quarter to get into the skating rink, and then sailed round and round till our feet slipped and we tumbled down and dislocated our shoulders, broke our collar bones or fractured our limbs. But nowadays we purchase flivvers, and break our arms cranking them or they run off from a high bank or try to climb trees or meet other flivvers in the middle of the highway, and fracture various and sundry portions of our anatomies. Tempus does indeed fugit."—Kansas City Star.

Find the Tarantula

"There's one exciting annual event that occurred in my old home town that I miss very much since I've moved to the city," declared a Gladstone avenue salesman, "—the discovery of a tarantula on a bunch of bananas by the leading grocer. As a thriller for the entire populace that towered over any other happening. With the discovery the town marshal or some other hero managed in some way to get the huge spider into a bottle which was corked up and placed on display in the grocer's window. Everyone turned out to inspect the capture, girls screamed and women shuddered."—Detroit News.

Spiritual Competition

The international spiritualist congress in Paris thinks that the time has arrived for simplifying the means of communication with the unseen world, and it is proposed to open a competition for the construction of an instrument that would enable the departed to communicate more easily with the living.

Ohio's Paint Production

It is not generally known that Ohio produces nearly one-fifth of the total volume of paint products in the United States, its output reaching 22,000,000 gallons a year, which exceeds by 2,000,000 gallons the total for her nearest competitor, New York.

Add Competition

"What did you learn today, Dorothy?"

"I learned that the storks don't carry babies like they used to because there's so many baby doctors now."

Statler Will Leave Million

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 30.—The will of Mary I. Statler, wife of Ellsworth M. Statler, president of the Hotels Statler Company disposes of more than $1,000,000 in personal property. A sister, Della F. Manderbach, formerly of this city, but now residing in New York city, is left $250,000 Legally adopted children, Milton Howland, 19 years old, Marian Frances, 18 years old; Ellsworth Morgan, 18 years old, and Elva Idesta, 13 years old, share equally in a trust fund of $100,000.

Testimony of subscribing witnesses to the will recently was taken in surrogate court of New York county. Witnesses were Dr. Joseph Nagel, Hotel Pennsylvania and Dr. J. Victor Haberman, No. 60 West 55th street, New York city.

Other provisions are a $50 a month income to Alice and Bert Manderbach of Canton, Ohio, a $75 a month income to William Henry Manderbach, No. 45 Elmer street, Buffalo. Mrs. Helen Hinton of Canton, Ohio, and Mrs. Vevie Manderbach of Ann Arbor are given 100 shares of preferred stock in the Hotels Statler Company. Harold Manderbach, Alice Manderbach of Ann Arbor, Mich, and Mrs. Frank D. Ross of Detroit, Mich, are given six hundred shares of the same stock. The LaFayette Presbyterian Church is given $1,000. A trust fund of 200 shares of Hotel Statler is created for Robert and June Hinton, grand nephew and niece of Canton, Ohio.

JOSEPH TRINKLE'S HOUSE AT PORT EWEN BURNED

Fire Tuesday evening destroyed the residence of Joseph Trinkle in lower Port Ewen, opposite the Church of the Presentation. The fire was discovered at 11:30 o'clock and an alarm turned in to which the village fire department responded. The house, a two story frame structure, burned to the ground. The origin of the fire is unknown.

PORT EWEN WOMEN DINE AND HAVE THEATER PARTY

The members of the Ever Ready Club and the Dorcas Club of Port Ewen enjoyed dinner Tuesday evening at McCabe's Restaurant on Wall street. After the dinner the club members to the number of 56 attended the Kingston Opera House and witnessed "Meet the Wife" presented by the Chicago Stock Company playing at that theater this week.

GIANT STATESMEN, PRESENT AND PAST

"It is impossible to make a just comparison between senators of today and those who loom large in senate history. It is much like the attempt to measure modern lawyers against the legal giants of the past. We select a few great names and forget the abundant mediocrity. Two things are certain. One is that the problems with which senators must nowadays wrestle have not decreased in number or complexity. The other is that the senators to whom these problems are presented must divide their time between the task of solution and the political work essential to success in open primaries and in state wide elections.

"The result is that senators are much more closely in touch with the life of their constituents and more responsive to their will. Whether in the end this makes for better government and sounder statesmanship is a question which each citizen must answer according to his conviction. At present it is a purely academic question. The open primary and the statewide election were necessary parts of the modern revolt against abused authority. It is too soon to affirm whether or not the change is salutary and permanent. However this may be, it is certain that the senate is no longer Mount Olympus, but it is also true that Pennsylvania avenue is a very different thoroughfare from Main street."—Senator George Wharton Pepper, in the Forum.

Mother Not Present at This Christening

What most strikes an outsider at christenings in peasant Sicily, where life still hovers around 1725, is the glorification of the father and godfather at the baby's expense, writes a correspondent of the Baltimore Sun.

If the mother is tactful she stays in bed, encouraging the assumption that it is entirely an affair for her husband's family to settle. The father and godfather swear eternal friendship. Indeed, to be "compare" with a man means that you will not only help him in trouble, lend him money and trust his family as your own, but if necessary will accept his politics.

The "compare" gives the father a silk handkerchief and the mother as expensive a present as he can afford, usually a coral brooch. Then he presents three pounds of macaroni, two pounds of biscuits, two pounds of coffee and three bottles of Marsala to the christening feast. Perhaps the godmother will have given the baby a christening cap or a tiny silver ring but more often than not he gets nothing. The godmother, in her best shawl, with the fringe that sweeps the ground, carries the baby, preceded by a bustling small girl, who hurries in front with a carafe of water for the font and a cross-stitched towel on which the priest wipes his hands

The father and "compare," in their best blacks, join them at the porch and candles are distributed, the more candles the better the "figura." The priest asks the godfather if he knows the Paternoster, and reassured by an encouraging if inaccurate answer, proceeds with the christening while the onlookers fight for candles.

BANISHMENT OF "SCOFFLAWS" WOULD CURE "DRY" ILLS

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Deportation of "scofflaws" would bring better enforcement and observance of the prohibition laws, Fred B. Smith, chairman of the committee of 1,000 for promotion of law observance told the closing session of the Associated Academic Principals today. The convention adopted a resolution urging all high school principals to uphold the law, including the Volstead act, by "personal example."

Officers elected are:

George R. Raynor of Chautauqua, president; George L. Bennett, Yonkers, vice-president; Linden Straub, Fulton, secretary; Walter S. Fraser, Niagara Falls, treasurer; Burtis E. Whittaker of Oyster Bay, Smith Thomas of Buffalo and Charles E. Riley, of Oswego, members of the executive committee.

NEW YEAR'S EVE AT THE K. OF C. BUILDING

Members of Kingston Council, Knights of Columbus, their families and friends are invited to watch the old year out and the new year in at the Knights of Columbus Hall Thursday evening.

In the past these affairs have proven very popular and from the program scheduled this year's party should eclipse all former successes. The large number home for the holidays is expected to swell the crowd. The Imperial Broadcasting Orchestra will supply the music.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 30.—The oil stocks held the center of the stage today in an irregular and somewhat erratic market, which was marked by the appearance of a considerable volume of cash selling, representing year end liquidation for the tax lists and other purposes.

Another decline in crude oil weekly production, bringing the total to the lowest since April and showing a decline of about 330,000 barrels daily from the peak of 1925, emphasized the improving situation in the petroleum industry. Spectacular developments among the California Oil Companies in the early part of next year were confidently predicted, resulting in a good demand for General Petroleum and Pan American Western. Simms sold up 2 points to a new high at 26½ on reports of a prospective increase in the annual dividend rate.

The steel trade reviews commented on the unusually high producing rate of the industry at the year end, and the comparatively high volume of forward orders, exceeding those of a year ago. The year 1925 has beaten the 1917 ... record of ingot production.

A number of the railroad stocks which have been displaying unusual strength for a week or more, like New York Central and Atchison, moved up higher, while utilities like Brooklyn Union Gas and North American Company, which have been steadily declining, touched lower levels.

Borrowers in the outside market were compelled to pay seven per cent for accommodation, an unusual occurrence. The banks were not inclined to "loosen up" and held the rate at six per cent.

New York Central's advance to above 137 was a feature of the late trading in the railroad list. Brokers reported the buying demand for this stock very persistent, particularly from the outside points. The motors and others were inactive.

COOLIDGE WILL NOT REAPPOINT B. E. HANEY.

Washington, Dec. 30.—President Coolidge probably will appoint Philip S. Teller of San Francisco, a Republican, and Marshall M. Dana, of Portland, Oregon, Democrat, to the United States shipping board, it was learned at the White House today.

One vacancy on the board was created by the resignation of Meyer Lissner of California.

Mr. Coolidge will not reappoint Bert E. Haney of Oregon, whose resignation was demanded but refused, and probably will name Dana to Haney's post.

Carpenter's Head Battered to Pulp

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 30.—Killers who, after battering to a pulp the head of Albert Nusbaum, 65 year old carpenter-contractor, are believed to have washed the body, garbed it in fresh clothing and a new overcoat and carried it a quarter of a mile from the scene of the murder, were being sought by police here today.

Two hours after the body was found in a lonely spot on the prairies south of the city near where Loeb and Leopold killed little Bobby Franks in 1924, Floyd Nusbaum, grandson of the victim, was under arrest and a dragnet was spread for his chum.

Young Nusbaum was taken into custody when he walked into the morgue where the aged man's body had been taken and identified it. His answers to questions led to a search of the automobile he was driving and revealed that the floor was blood stained, a bit of what was believed to be a human skull was found in the car, also, according to the police.

"Nusbaum has been in trouble before and is beginning to weaken" said Captain Patrick J. Collins after he had questioned the youth behind closed doors.

Discovery of the aged man's body by John Pluskota, a track worker for the Illinois Central railroad, was followed by a rapidly moving series of events.

Within thirty minutes police had discovered, a quarter of a mile away, an abandoned blood stained automobile and beside it the remains of a bonfire and the charred fragments of clothing. Nearby was a bundle containing two women's dresses, two bath towels, a canvas mitten and a woman's shawl. All were saturated with blood and pieces of scalp and locks of hair were clinging to the towels. The presence of the women's clothing added to the mystery of the police.

Although Nusbaum must have bled freely from his wounds, the body had been wiped clean and the linen he wore was fresh and unstained.

Geo. Washington Beat Catskill

The much-famed George Washington High School court team of New York city and champions of the metropolitan area for the season of 1924-25 met the Catskill High School team Tuesday evening on the "Y" court at Catskill, easily routing the Catskill outfit by a 37 to 19 score. The Catskill team was outclassed from the start and at half time their powerful New York opponents were leading by a score of 24 to 8. The George Washington team is now making a tour of this section of New York state. In the last half the Catskill outfit were more accurate with the leather, making but two markers less than the New York champions. In this second half the Catskill team scored 11 points while the New Yorkers gleaned 13 markers.

Odds and Ends

The annual Christmas exercises of the Fair Street Reformed Sunday school will be held in the Sunday school rooms tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

There will be a meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Rondout Presbyterian Church tomorrow evening following the Thursday evening service at the church.

The Girls' Friendly Society of the Holy Cross Church will hold a special meeting at the parish house on Saturday evening, January 2. It is hoped that all members will be present.

"LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY" AT ORPHEUM THEATER.

Mary Pickford's new United Artists' Corporation production, "Little Annie Rooney," which comes to the Orpheum Theater Monday, January 4, for the entire week, is a story of New York's East side, yet it was made in Hollywood. In the story Little Annie Rooney is the 12 year old daughter of a popular New York bluecoat; leader in a band of rough-and-tumble, alley-fighting youngsters of "the block," and secretly and wildly infatuated with a hulking truck driver, Joe Kelly, who is the pal of her big brother, Tim Rooney.

The scenes show littered streets and areaways of the tenement district making hiding places for Little Annie Rooney and her band of supporters when attacked by rival kid gangsters.

Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. Rehearsal.

There will be a rehearsal of the cast of the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. minstrel at the rooms of the organization this evening at 7:30. Everyone is requested to be present.

Mystery over Tacna Arica Row

White House Abhors Idea That U. S. Intended To Leave The Plebiscite—Kellogg Denies Break Between Coolidge and Pershing.

Washington, Dec. 30.—A decided air of mystery fell over official Washington today in regard to the Tacna-Arica question.

No one in authority professed to know definitely whether General John J. Pershing, head of the plebiscitary commission that is attempting to settle the boundary row between Chile and Peru, would come home next week or next month or six weeks from now, nor did any one care to say definitely whether Pershing's health is in bad shape, as first was reported here, or whether he is suffering only from lack of proper dental attention.

The White House abhorred the idea that the United States intended to leave the plebiscite flat, but there was undisguised apprehension in official quarters over Chile's action in protesting Pershing's conduct of the plebiscite.

Kellogg Denies Break.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—Secretary of State Kellogg, passing through Chicago today, denied rumors of a break between President Coolidge and General Pershing over the Chile-Peru plebiscite.

Mr. Kellogg is on route to Washington from Minneapolis.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna M. Krebs was held from her late home, No. 47 German street, this morning at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 at St. Peter's Church, where a requiem Mass was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. J. P. Neumann. The services were largely attended by her many relatives and friends and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. There was a large delegation from the Christian Mothers' Society of St. Peter's Church in attendance. The bearers were Peter Zeeh, Nicholas Huber, Joseph Grahs, Frank Stengicin, Henry Wenzel and Louis Van Barber. The interment was in the family plot in St. Peter's Cemetery, where the committal services were conducted by the Rev. Joseph Ostermann.

The funeral of Mrs. Joanna F. Mautersjock, wife of the late Albert Mauterstock, was held from her late home, No. 103 Hone street, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 and was very largely attended by her many relatives and friends. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, testifying to the high esteem in which she was held by all who knew her. The services were in charge of the Rev. A. M. Wilkins, pastor of the Trinity M. E. Church, where the deceased had long been a faithful member, assisted by the Rev. P. C. Weyant of New York city, a former pastor at Trinity Church. During the services two very beautiful duets were rendered by Miss Mildred Messinger and Mrs. Benjamin Johnston, accompanied by Mrs. Gladys Ralchie Millonig, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory" and "In the Garden." The bearers were H. H. Flemming, Roy Wood, A. W. Tongue, Herbert Hall, George Lowe and Monroe Burger. The interment was in the family plot in Montrepose Cemetery.

Cardinal's Condition Causes Alarm.

Brussels, Dec. 30.—Despite reassuring bulletins, it was learned today that the condition of Cardinal Mercier is causing alarm. Physicians have been in constant attention since 3 o'clock this morning. The cardinal underwent an operation for stomach trouble yesterday.

Woman to Explore Persia

Miss Ada Boyland, the intrepid woman explorer, who has only recently returned to England after an adventurous trip through Nigeria, has now declared her intention of going out alone for the more remote parts of Persia, an enterprise fraught with great risk.

Big Losses Due To Amortization

Is Reported to Couzens Committee by Special Investigators—Methods for Improvement Will Be Aired in Congress.

Washington, Dec. 30.—In the face of charges that the government has lost from one to three billion dollars since 1917 through "loopholes" in the administration of federal tax laws, congress will be called upon early in the new year to revise the administrative powers of the internal revenue bureau.

This became certain today when Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, chairman, announced that the senate finance committee would give "careful consideration" to recommendations of the Couzens senatorial committee for plugging "leaks" in the existing revenue statutes. The Couzens committee, which spent two years studying the administration of tax laws, will be given a hearing probably beginning January 5.

Senator Couzens, Republican of Michigan, chairman of the special committee, meanwhile announced he would accept the finance committee's invitation.

"Our recommendations will deal with amortization settlements, compromises entered into by the internal revenue bureau on special assessments, the handling of fraud cases and the placing of discovery values upon natural resources," Couzens said.

He said his personal recommendations would be aimed at the elimination of "judicial decisions" by the international revenue bureau, under which minor officials interpret the law of congress to please themselves.

Tremendous losses in revenues, due to amortization allowances granted by the internal revenue bureau, were reported to the Couzens committee by special investigators during its long inquiry. A total of approximately $600,000,000 in amortization allowances was studied. One instance, the investigators said, involved the United States Steel Corporation where the government lost $21,000,000 in taxes through a ruling on amortization which was later attacked by officials in and out of the treasury department.

About the Folks

Better Marketing System Needed

Senator Capper, Farm Bloc Leader, Tells Boston Chamber of Commerce—Government must Provide a Market for Crop Surpluses.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 30.—To prevent recurrence of the economic slump from which agriculture is just emerging, the farmer must demand his business be established on a reasonable equality with other industry, must organize an efficient marketing system and the government must provide a market for crop surpluses, Senator Capper, Republican of Kansas, farm bloc leader, today told the Boston chamber of commerce.

"The farmer must have the same kind of a market to sell in that he is obliged to buy in," Capper said. "A better marketing system should be in the control of the producers of basic commodities that are subject to the organized devices of big business interests that have both the disposition and the facilities to buy farm products at lowest prices and in absolute disregard of progressive costs."

Capper urged the necessity for a proper economic balance between western agriculture and eastern business.

"Everyone knows that agriculture as an industry is just emerging from a severe crisis," he said. "During the five years between 1920 and 1924 the farmer had rough sledding. He was blessed with bountiful crops, yet at the end of his year's work he found himself worse off in his pockets. In hundreds of thousands of instances farmers not only worked for twelve months for nothing but actually had to borrow money.

"Farmers received ten billion dollars for their products last year, while consumers paid thirty billion for these same products. The chief reason for this is that we have the costliest and the most wasteful system of distribution in the world.

"While the government should not engage in buying and selling farm products, nor in price fixing, it certainly should take a more interested and active part in finding markets for our agricultural surpluses so that prices obtained by the producer of farm products shall not continue to be so absurdly out of harmony with general price levels."

Heard Death Shot

MISS EDWYNA AUSTIN

Standing at the long distance telephone, Edwyna Austin, of Brookline, Mass., heard a shot fired at the other end of the wire. It spelled the death of N. L. Langworthy, Boston broker. He had just been divorced in Providence. When Miss Austin refused to wed him, he shot himself.

REAL PROGRESS AHEAD SAYS "DRY" DIRECTOR.

Key West, Fla., Dec. 30.—For the first time since the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment, the government on January 1 will enter upon a new year with a prospect of witnessing real progress toward enforcement of the dry laws, General L. C. Andrews, chief director, declared when he arrived here today on the U. S. Cutter Modoc, in the course of his Atlantic sea coast inspection.

The enforcement problem in Florida is particularly acute, Andrews admitted.

THE JOINERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

Minnewaska Tribe, No. 130, Improved Order of Red Men, will hold their first meeting in their new quarters in Odd Fellows' Hall, corner of Brewster street and Broadway, on New Year's night. Meetings will be held in future on Friday nights. All members of the order are requested to come out New Year's night and inspect the new quarters which have been fitted up.

Early Colonial Domain

The expression "Old Colony" originally applied to that part of Massachusetts included in the limits of the Plymouth colony, but afterwards was used to designate the entire state. In 1692 the Plymouth and Massachusetts bay colonies, which for many years had been independent of each other, were united in one province, bearing the name Massachusetts.—Kansas City Star.

Securing Wall Paper

If wall paper persists in pulling off despite repasting, it can be secured with flat-headed carpet nails, on the heads of which pieces of paper have been pasted to make them unnoticed. Again, doors and floor-boards often shrink, causing a draught under the door. Such a gap is easily got rid of by inserting pieces of paper to build up the carpet or linoleum.

Work Was the Salient Factor

The Good Formula of Work, Instead of Quack Nostrums Outstanding Fact in Business Situation—Reasonable Credit Terms Favorable Omen.

By G. R. Movercord, President American Manufacturers' Foreign Credit Underwriters.

Written for International News Service

New York, Dec. 30.—The outstanding fact to me in this year's business situation is that our people have gotten their feet on the ground once more and have ceased to look for quack nostrums to cure their ills and have gotten back to the good formula of work. It seems to me that the general public opinion more nearly approaches the view of good times ahead by hard work as was the case in 1901 when we entered an era of prosperity based in the tried and true formula of "sawing wood" and plenty of elbow grease to do it with.

The favorable omen I see in the export situation is the fact that our exporters are gradually being educated to the willingness to grant reasonable credit terms to the foreign buyer. Our exports will be tremendously increased by the mere fact that such credit grants are becoming the usual thing and not the exception.

The one danger on the horizon as I see it is the use of quack nostrums by the farmers.

Natural Soap

In British Columbia there is a peculiar mine from which a kind of soap is obtained. The origin of the substance is a mystery, but it consists of borax and some fatty ingredient blended by nature into the semblance and consistency of soap.

POULTRY FACTS

EXPERIMENTS SHOW HIGH FEED VALUES

The results of the feeding experiments conducted during the past three years by the poultry department of the Idaho Agricultural college show that the ration containing peameal and sour skim milk was outstanding in making hens lay. A ration in which the dry mash contained 20 per cent peameal and unlimited sour skim milk gave higher percentage egg production, more eggs per pullet, cheaper eggs and greater profits over feed cost than any of the other rations in the experiment. This ration made the hens lay a large number of large eggs.

Peas are available or may be grown in nearly every part of Idaho. The expense of grinding them into pea meal and placing them in the dry mash is small.

During the present year, the pen in the feeding experiment getting pea meal and sour skim milk gave an average egg production of 49.6 per cent. Eggs were produced the year around at a feed cost of 14 cents. The pullets averaged 181.2 eggs each, consumed 39 pounds of grain, 21.8 pounds of dry mash and 148.2 pounds of sour skim milk each and made a profit over feed cost of $2.33 each. Forty-four per cent of the eggs laid by this pen weighed 24 to 28 ounces to the dozen, 39 per cent from 22 to 24 ounces and only 17 per cent below 22 ounces. When the results of this pen are compared to those of one not getting the peameal or sour skim milk, they show that the peameal and sour skim milk pen laid over three times the total number of eggs, over seven times as many marketable eggs, or eggs over 22 ounces per dozen, gave $1.07 greater profit over feed cost per pullet and produced eggs at 7.5 cents cheaper feed cost per dozen.

Undersized Pullet Will Make Poorest Egg Layer

"Experience is the keynote in profitable egg production," declares J. G. Halpin of the University of Wisconsin poultry department.

As in many other things, it is easy to say it should be done, but quite a different matter when it comes to doing it. It is just like feeding cattle—two men may divide a herd equally, and both feed the same kind of feed; yet one will lose, while the other will make a profit.

"Immature and undersized pullets are the cause of low egg production in many flocks" continues Halpin. "Some people try to make themselves believe that they have a flock of good-sized pullets by weighing the largest ones. A pullet which is under-size or immature will not lay enough to be profitable. What one man considers a small pullet, may be considered large enough by another man. But there are standards of weight which are about right for egg production."

The time which the chicks should be hatched depends upon the man who is doing the feeding. Chicks under one man's care may mature much earlier than under the care of another. Pullets should be matured at a time when they will come into laying in the early winter months when egg prices are highest, advises the poultryman.

Cure Egg-Eating Hens

To stop hens from eating eggs provide plenty of oyster shell and feed the scratch grain in the litter, so the hens will be kept busy as much of the time as possible. Feed a balanced ration containing plenty of meat food—20 per cent—and darken the nests so the hens will not be so likely to see the eggs.

Poultry Notes

Ducks are usually mated in flocks of about thirty females with five or six males.

Animal protein in the form of meat scrap, tankage, fish scrap, dried buttermilk, or semi-solid buttermilk is very essential to heavy egg production.

War's Toll Reckoned in Shattered Souls

Oldfield is one of the psychic disabilities of the war. He has been with us now two weeks, and he and I have taken a long walk each day across the fields, but I have never heard from him one word about the war until recently. Then it was Lucy who, womanlike, instinctively and understandingly met the situation and left me alone by the granary after she and Oldfield had gone (he tremblingly) to the house leaving me cursing myself for a blithering and meddlesome and ivory-headed idiot. We had come from the lane and rounded the edge by the granary, when a great brown rat sped by from the corncrib to its hole, and in an instant the six-footer Oldfield was in my arms, gibbering like a cretin. "The rat . . . the rat . . . My God get that d—d rat out of here—" He shrieked and moaned [illegible]

To Survey Salt Lake

The Great Salt lake has never been surveyed by the government and the work, an extensive task, is about to be begun by the geological survey and the general land office. The survey will be an investigation of its resources and possibilities as much as anything else.

Tracts of land found containing valuable salts will be designated and classified. The general land office through its government surveyors will undertake the running over the entire desert of the Salt lake base line, first standard parallels north and south, the third guide meridian west and such other controlling lines of the public land survey system as are deemed necessary.

Because of the saline and salts deposits throughout the area the surveyors will be compelled to use wood or posts or suitable material to mark the course of these lines across the desert. Should the regular iron posts be used as markers in the survey it is believed that they would soon be corroded.

No Changes in The Giant Roster

McGraw Leaves For Florida Without Making a Change—Giant Manager Not the Trader of Former Years.

New York, Dec. 30.—Headed south today for Florida where spaces are sub-divisions and men are realtors, John McGraw left in his immediate rear a list of thirty-eight ball players who will be taken to the training camp of the Giants and the general impression that either he has conceded the 1926 pennant to the Pittsburgh Pirates or that he has an advantageous deal in prospect. The roster made public contains virtually the same personnel that finished second to the Pirates in 1925.

McG... cannot afford to stand pat. ... ostensibly, that is what he is planning to do. He said he would return to New York for the February baseball meetings at which, he intimated, something might happen. He gave the bland impression of one who didn't care whether anything did not not.

It was hardly the attitude of a manager who has allowed his club to grow old in spots. According to bleacher managers, he must have a dashing, young catcher of experience if he is to figure seriously in the 1926 stampede. He has made no studied attempt to achieve this purpose, even going so far to decline to do business with the Phillies for "Butch" Heueline.

He seemed to think that Hugh McMullen, a young man who joined the club late in the 1925 season, will add the necessary sparkle to the catching staff, the remainder of which is made up of Frank Snyder and Grover Hartley. These worthies are somewhat aged.

So is Heine Groh, slated to start at third base unless young Lindstrom shows a return of his 1924 form. Lindstrom was more or less of a flop last year. A new center fielder to replace Bill Southworth, who seems definitely to have lost the ability he knew in Pittsburgh and Boston, also is needed. Al Tyson was a riot in Louisville but many a small time wonder has proved a big time "bolony."

In any case, it has not been McGraw's system in the past to lean too heavily on the prospects of untried minor leaguers, regardless of records. His existing lack of activity, however, is only in keeping with the times.

It merely serves to emphasize the fact that McGraw is not the intrepid, catch-as-can-miss trader of former years. Then, he would trade anything or anybody in the hope of obtaining immediate results. Now, he must look beyond the present, for the reason that all clubs, having made money during recent seasons, can afford to sit back and make a hard bargain or decline to do business with him at all.

The days when a man could rush into the open market, wave a handful of banknotes and depart with a star player are gone, never to return. McGraw knows this. He is faced with the necessity of building up his own clubs and must think ahead two years instead of two months. He proved that he was doing just that when he said he had refused to trade Kelly for Roush and Fred Fitzsimmons for Luque. Under similar conditions ten years ago, he would have given half his ball club for Rousch and Luque.

S. A. JUNIORS BEAT THE ALL-IRISH FIVE

The Salvation Army Juniors trimmed the strong All-Irish Five hailing from the vicinity of Rondout Tuesday afternoon by the score of 23 to 18, the match being fought out at the Salvation Army Hall on North Front street. The uptown lads easily routed their opponents from the other extreme of the city who never threatened the S. A. outfit.

H. Kantrowitz and Misone were the leading sharpshooters for uptowners with nine and six markers respectively. Jordan was the most active in gathering points for the All-Irish aggregation with seven points.

The score:

IRISH-AMERICANS WILL PLAY AT NEWBURGH

On New Year's Eve the fast Kingston Irish-Americans will play the strong Gardnertown A. C. of Newburgh. This team boasts of a thirty straight win record and will have their hands full to stop the fast traveling Irish-Americans.

In the Newburgh team's lineup will be Groth, Coleman and such other stars of the hilly city.

This team is practically on a par with most of the Tri-County teams.

The Irish-Americans will have plenty of strength in their lineup of Hoffman, Vogt, DuBois, Clark, Joyce, Rice, O'Reilly, Cahill and Scheffel.

On Friday evening the Irish-Americans will play the fast Company team in the preliminary to the Kingston-Poughkeepsie match.

All players are requested to meet at the Y. M. C. A. at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night.

ASSOCIATION CONDEMNS PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL

New York, Dec. 30.—Discussion of the status of athletics in the scheme of education was expected to occupy the delegates attending the annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association today, bringing to a conclusion the series of athletic conferences held here. The association having drafted a resolution condemning professional football, also was expected to take some action that might result in keeping the college and professional games separate.

Addresses will be delivered by Major General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the association; Bishop William T. Manning, of New York, Professor E. M. Hopkins, Dartmouth, General James A. Drain, commander of the American Legion, and Dr. John Wilce., Ohio State football coach.

PREDICT REAPPOINTMENT OF FARLEY AND MULDOON

New York, Dec. 30.—Reappointment of James E. Farley and William Muldoon as members of the New York State Athletic Commission by Governor Smith is freely predicted in sport and political circles here. Their terms expire tomorrow. The term of George E. Brower, third member of the board, has another year to run.

Last Night's Bouts.

New York.—Ruby Goldstein, New York, knocked out Georgie Day, New Haven, third round; George Courtney, Oklahoma, knocked out Jose Perris, Spain, first round.

Coast Player At Pivot Post

Huggins Puts Lazerre at Second To Start Season—Coast Player Will Have to Fight Hard.

New York, Dec. 30.—Tony Lazerre, Pacific Coast slugger, will cavort at second base for the Yankees next season—if he cavorts at all.

That's the official communicado from Miller Huggins.

And it may mean much or nothing.

No infielder in years has come up to the majors with quite so much ballyhoo as has accompanied Lazerre on the big jump. Coast League experts pronounce him a fielding marvel. His batting average speaks for itself. And, according to the lads who know, he has a whole head full of baseball intelligence.

Which may run for Mayor—or for Sweeney.

For grabbing that second base job on the Yankees next year will be no lead pipe cinch. Aaron Ward has been more cussed than discussed in the past year, but Wardie is still a young man, and capable of playing high grade ball. Not so many seasons ago he was looked upon as the best keystoner in the league.

Ward on Market.

Huggins has announced that Wardie is on the market. But he hasn't been traded yet. And if he is traded some veteran infielder of recognized ability will replace him in Yankee uniform.

Overcoming Wardie or his veteran successor will be Mr. Lazerre's first hurdle on the road to fame.

Following which accomplishment he will find the bow-legged figure of little Mike Gazella standing between him and the ultimate goal. Gazella was up with the Yankees a few seasons ago—and gave promise of big things. But he couldn't quite make the grade and was sent back to the minors. Last season he played with Atlanta and burned up the league. Apparently he has arrived.

If Mr. Huggins says Lazerre will start at second base the chances are the advertised Tony will do just that thing. But he'll have to show something more than a clipping book of newspaper stories to hold the job.

Atlantations Get Call.

No less than five former members of the Atlanta club will cavort in Yankee uniforms this spring, unless they are traded meantime.

Of the lot, quite the likeliest looking candidate seems to be "Nick" Cullop, the man who chased all the alligators out of St. Petersburg. Nick can hit the apple—and is a pretty fair fielder into the bargain.

Breaking into the Yankee outfield will be a man sized job and Nick may not make it—but it's a dead certain cinch that a half dozen other clubs will be waiting around to grab him before he has a chance to dirty his uniform in the baseball ash can.

ST. JOSEPH'S WILL AGAIN PLAY AT HIGHLAND

Having once eaten dirt from the hands of the St. Joseph's aggregation, several weeks ago, the Highland Basketball Five have again invited the local lads to their village for a second match, Friday evening. The Highland outfit will reinforce their lineup in preparation for this second match in hopes of felling the locals. Fans in Highland are great backers of their aggregation and it is probable that another large crowd will turn out for Friday's match. Manager Quinn will use the usual lineup with the exception of Tom McGrane who will fill Joe Hoffman's post for this tilt.

International Golf Match.

New York, Dec. 30.—According to present plans, Archie Compston and Arnaud Messey, British professional and French open golf champions respectively, will leave here Friday afternoon for St. Augustine, Fla., where on Sunday they play their international golf match with Bobby Jones and Watts Gunn, noted Atlanta amateurs.

PENN OARSMEN TO FACE REAL TEST

Two Important Events Only Two Days Apart.

The hardest rowing schedule of any college in the United States has been arranged for the oarsmen of the University of Pennsylvania.

It will be a severe test for the new coaches, Fred Spuhn and Max Luft, both former oarsmen in the University of Washington intercollegiate championship crews, who are introducing the western rowing stroke.

Penn varsity crews are entered in six races, according to the tentative plans. The junior varsity and freshman crews will row in five each. Two of the events will be only two days apart, the Child's cup regatta, being on May 20, and the American Henley on May 31.

This is to be the first time any college varsity crew will attempt to row in two regattas in less than a week. The Child's cup race will be held at Princeton and the American Henley on the Schuylkill.

"Penn's crews have built up a splendid reputation for sportsmanship," said Mr. Brown. "They have entered every college rowing contest open to them and do not want to miss any opportunity next season.

"We could not overlook the American Henley, despite the fact that we have an important race two days before. We feel that the American Henley is one of the important rowing events of the year, and we want to lend our help keeping up the prestige of that classic.

"If oarsmen are in proper condition, I don't think it makes any difference how many races they enter, and the outcome of the two races will be watched with interest."

In the American Henley it is likely the only college varsity crews will be Penn and Syracuse. It also is probable, however, that the Penn Athletic club senior eight will take part in this race, which is for the Steward's cup.

Joe Wright, formerly coach at Pennsylvania, recently asserted he will attempt to win the trophy which heretofore has been held only by college crews.

Trainer Hogg Scores a Triple Win With Horses

Captain Hogg, the Russley trainer, had ample reason to be satisfied with the well-planned raid which he carried out at Leicester just before flat racing for the year ended in England recently. Half the races on the card were won by horses trained by him, two of them being in his own name. Once before he had won three races in one afternoon, but his latest achievement is considered the more noteworthy in that it came in the last fortnight of the season when so many horses are much fancied to win.

The first of Captain Hogg's winning trio was Watchful, which, ridden by the younger Richards, started at 5 to 1. Watchful beat seven others, three of which were at shorter odds. Then came the victory of Yellow Underwing, at odds of 100 to 14, in the Leicestershire handicap, the feature of the day. Gordon Richards, whose brother, Clifford, rode Watchful, was astride Yellow Underwing. He also rode Captain Hogg's Saperlipopette to win the Apethorpe Nursery at odds of 100 to 30. In this race Gordon Richards showed his skill as a jockey by getting his mount home first by a neck.

Al Simmons Is Praised by Manager Connie Mack

"He's the best center fielder the American league has had since Tris Speaker was in his prime." That is Connie Mack's opinion of Al Simmons, his crack gardener.

"Simmons lacks the grace of Speaker in the field and at the bat, but in results he comes closer to equaling Speaker than any center fielder in the history of the American league," adds the usually reticent Mr. Mack.

Most American leaguers and baseball experts agree with Mack's rating of Simmons, who ranked next to Peckinpaugh as the American league's most valuable player.

Simmons is a right-handed batter and is the hardest hitting right-hander in the league. Harry Heilmann of the Detroit Tigers excepted.

Gleason to Aid Mack

Kid Gleason, coaching manager of the Chicago White Sox has been signed to help Connie Mack of the Athletics. Gleason will act as coach.

Early Use of Sugar

It is reported that the manufacture of sugar cane is older than history and that reference to it is found in the Sanskrit of ancient India. The Greeks and Romans used sugar at one time for medicinal purposes only, obtaining it from India at great cost.

GARDNERTOWN A. C. SEEKS GAMES WITH LOCAL FIVES

The record-holding Gardnertown A. C. of Newburgh is in hopes of booking matches with several strong teams of this city. Last season this outfit played twenty-five games and won every match. So far this season this club has lost only one game out of thirty-five played, a rather brilliant record. To top it all off this outfit holds a win over the strong Perdens Five of Newburgh. This club challenges any senior outfit in Kingston and specially mentions the Army Five.

CHICAGO SPORT TEMPLE WILL RIVAL MADISON GARDEN

Chicago, Dec. 30.—A duplicate Madison Square Garden for Chicago and a Mickey Walker-Harry Greb bout here next spring in place of the proposed Dempsey-Wills fight, were prophesied by Jack Kearns as he left Chicago for the east today.

The construction of a recreation temple here to rival Tex Rickard's sport mecca long has been the dream of a certain group of money men and local promoters, Kearns said.
